SOVIETS GAIN IN STALINGRAD

Confesses Slaying Father and Mother

SAYS DISPUTE ABOUT DEBTS CAUSE ACTION

St. Louis Electrician Tells of Hacking Parents to Death With Ax.

SAYS HE'S SORRY

"I Know the Penalty for My Crime and I'm Willing to Pay It," He Remarks.

(By Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS — After hours of questioning, Robert Nash, 27-year-old St. Louis electrician, today confessed, said Police Capt. Leonard Murphy, to the ax slaying of his father and mother during a quarrel over his financial difficulties.

The St. Louis police detective said the husky blond-haired youth related details of the brutal crime to police, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Illinois authorities.

Charles A. Nash, 61-year-old internal revenue agent, and his 49-year-old wife, Eleanor, were found, hacked and mutilated, Tuesday night in the family automobile on a highway eight miles north of Springfield, Ill.

Unruffled by a constant barrage of questions, the younger Nash finally revealed he slew his father, then his mother, during a violent argument over $640 in personal debts and his habit of continued late hours, Murphy related.

Nash said at a press conference after police announced he had admitted the slayings that the altercation with his parents took place on a deserted country road near St. Louis. He stopped the car, he told newspapermen, during the argument, and then struck his father.

"I know the penalty for my crime and I'm willing to pay it," Nash told reporters.

"Are you sorry?" he was asked.

"Of course, I'm sorry," Nash replied.

Nash's version of the murder,

Dems, G. O. P. Book Rallies For October

Each Party Decides to Hold 2 Sessions; Open Headquarters.

Deciding that the public is too much interested in winning the war to give much time to political campaigning, Richland county Democratic and Republican organizations today were planning only two major rallies each in the county before the November election, all of the meetings probably coming during October.

The Young Democrats plan to bring John McSweeney, the party's nominee for governor, to the city for a county-wide rally Oct. 13.

Gov. John W. Bricker, seeking re-election on the Republican ticket, is expected to speak at a meeting in Mansfield during the final two weeks of October, Ralph Hardy, county G. O. P. executive chairman, said.

Other candidates for state offices will be invited to speak at the two rallies for the gubernatorial candidates, party leaders said.

Both parties also are considering county-wide rallies in behalf of their congressional candidates, with the candidates and possibly nationally-known congressmen as speakers. Republicans are attempting to schedule Congressman Dewey Short, colorful Missourian, as their congressional speaker.

Except for the Democratic rally for McSweeney on Oct. 13, no dates have been set for the meetings. Party heads said the meetings must be arranged at the convenience of the candidates who will have busy schedules during October.

Both parties had opened campaign headquarters today in the city, the Democrats at 17½ North Main street over the Martin Hardware company and the Republicans on the second floor of the Warner building at 58½ North Main street.

Both parties were in the same quarters two years ago. G.O.P. Chairman Hardy said the party had leased the Warner building space for two months.

Right-Ho! Mansfield, England, We Think Your Son's a Very Fine Chap

And, What's More, He Likes Our Town, Too.

By KEN WOODMAN

If you see a British sailor with a pleasant grin and a jaunty white cap perched on the back of his head anywhere in Mansfield during the next few days, that's Eric Turner. He's from Mansfield, Nottinghamshire, England, and a mighty nice chap to know.

Turner, who is 25 and in the United States with a unit of the British navy stationed "somewhere in Virginia," is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wyllie, 602 Johns avenue.

"Long before the war," he said, "when I was a student at High Oakham school, I had heard of Mansfield, Ohio. The newspaper used to carry an exchange of greetings between the two cities every Christmas.

"I always wanted to come here, but I never expected to be here in uniform," he continued. "However, when our ship—I can't tell you its name, you know—put into port in America, I said, 'Right-ho! Mansfield, here I come.'"

But Turner, who arrived in the city last night says he was waylaid in Columbus by a prime example of American hospitality. He encountered a resident of Akron who insisted on taking him to his home for a visit.

"I've been there several days," he said, "seeing some of your American night life. It's quite a contrast from Nottinghamshire. During the week we may go out in the evening, but only on Friday or Saturday night do we stay out late and then it's almost never past two. In Akron it was 8 a. m. when we got home."

A sailor on furlough certainly has a right to some interest in

Eric Turner . . . From Mansfield, England.

American night life, but Turner is interested in a great deal more.

In the first place, the topography of the Mansfield area makes him feel pretty much at home because there are hills all around his home city.

"You can't get out of the town without climbing a hill," he said.

Inside the city of more than 45,000 population in Nottinghamshire are industries comparable to those here.

FARM PARITY COMPROMISE TURNED DOWN

Leaders Walk Out of Session With Administration Men, Reject Settlement.

SURE VETO SEEN

Agricultural Groups Demand Inclusion of Labor Cost In Fixing Prices.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Senate farm bloc leaders today rejected administration offers of a compromise on farm price provisions of the anti-inflation bill.

The rejection was made at a meeting called by administration leaders in a last-minute effort to work out an acceptable settlement of the farm price issue. The farm block leaders walked out of the meeting, determined to press for inclusion of all farm labor costs in computing parity.

The house already has passed the bill with the farm-sponsored clause to boost parity—which the administration estimated would increase living cost five per cent.

Administration spokesmen conceded they were fighting with their backs to the wall, and saw little hope that the senate would accept their version of the bill.

They declared that if congress passes the bill with the provision to include labor costs in computing parity, President Roosevelt probably would veto the measure and act by executive order to stem inflation.

Sen. Elmer Thomas, (D., Okla.) senate sponsor of the labor cost amendment—which would increase parity by 12 per cent and raise the cost of living an estimated $3,500,000,000 annually—said he and his farm state colleagues were "outnumbered" at the conference.

Senate Republican Leader Charles L. McNary of Oregon said no agreement had been reached at the meeting, but that further meeting might be held later in an attempt to compose farm bloc-administration differences.

Administration leaders remained in conference after the farm bloc left, however, and

Report German Losses Total 15,000 Daily

Russians Dynamite Large Building In Center of City Occupied by Foe; Workers Leap Into Unfinished Tanks To Hold Off Enemy.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—The Vichy radio reported today that the Russians had recaptured a number of streets in the northwestern suburbs of embattled Stalingrad.

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—With German losses now averaging the appalling figure of a full division or 15,000 men daily, the battle of Stalingrad roared into its second month today and new successes were reported for the counter-attacking Russians.

The Nazi losses included such incidents as the dynamiting by Soviet sappers of one of Stalingrad's main business buildings which had been occupied by the enemy. The large structure crumbled with a deafening roar when 250 pounds of dynamite were exploded by five Red army men who had volunteered to carry 50 pounds of explosives each.

At the same time, Soviet troops cut a main road at Goroditscha, five miles northwest of Stalingrad, dislodging the Germans from an occupied locality, probably Goroditscha itself.

With the Soviet air force back in action after a considerable period of inactivity and warships of the Caspian sea fleet lobbing shells into the Nazi lines, from moorings in the Volga, the tempo of the battle mounted steadily.

Many dramatic incidents were reported in front line dispatches.

At one point on the outskirts of Stalingrad where the Germans tried to break through, women workers in a tank factory leaped into tanks still standing uncommissioned in the factory yards and drove them against the Nazis, holding the enemy until nightfall when Russian reinforcements arrived.

Many of the women were killed in the engagement, but the German thrust was beaten off.

Meanwhile, the Germans brought up new reinforcements and intensified their pressure in the Novorossisk-Mozdok area in an effort to capture a number of key heights. The Red army made frequent powerful counter-attacks.

Two major German attacks were repulsed in this sector, one with a spearhead of 60 tanks. Another Russian attack in a different area put another 60 tanks out of action.

Russian marines, supported by gunboats which laid down a heavy barrage, repulsed fierce enemy attacks north of Stalingrad and captured an inhabited locality, inflicting "considerable" losses on the enemy.

Other Soviet forces which three days ago retook an important height overlooking Leningrad cleared several more streets and widened their theater of operations. On many sectors, the Germans now have been forced on the defensive.

The resurgent Soviet defenders also dislodged the invaders from positions in one sector inside the Volga industrial city.

The Germans, after suffering heavy losses in the battle for the city, are hurriedly bringing up reinforcements in air transports, a communique said.

The Nazis were reported to be losing a division of men each day in the titanic struggle for Stalingrad.

Driving at 100 Miles Per Hour Costs Him $16.30

Whether it was a plane merely flying low or an auto actually speeding 100 miles an hour on U. S. Route 42-N was the problem confronting Corp. C. W. Cale and Patrolman Hurst of the state highway patrol last night.

However, they arrested Joseph Zingali Zingale, Kinsman road, Cleveland, who was found to be driving a high-powered car. He was released on posting bond of $16.30 and waiving municipal court hearing.

"I can't understand this," Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch told Cale this morning after noting the unusually excessive speed shown on the court report.

"Oh well, he was just going fast," Cale replied.

Judge Kalbfleisch indicated that, in his opinion, such flagrant violation of speed laws and rubber-fuel conservation recommendations

Forecast Carries Threat of Killing Frost.

A forecast of much colder weather for the Mansfield area today carried the treat of the season's first killing frost by tomorrow morning.

With the mercury at 37 this morning and only 47 at noon today despite brilliant sunshine, the temperature could easily drop to freezing tonight, observers said.

After climbing to a high of 67 yesterday afternoon, the mercury began a sharp drop during the night as a brisk southwest wind blew a new cool wave into Ohio. Farmers said the wind might help to avert a heavy freeze tonight if it continues to blow as it did throughout the morning.

ALASKA ROAD TO OPEN DEC. 1

Army Engineers Beat Schedule on Job; Highway to Carry Military Supplies.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The Canadian-Alaskan military highway, a vital link in Alaskan defenses and a supply line for the series of air bases stretching across Canada, will be ready for use about Dec. 1, several months ahead of schedule, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson announced today.

U. S. Army engineers, who have been building the road since March, now are planning to have traffic moving over its 1,600 miles by Dec. 1 and continue until April 1, 1943, when spring thaws probably will make it unusable for heavy traffic for two months.

Engineers originally planned a rough "pioneer" road to be completed in a year. It has turned out to be a well-graded, well-drained truck highway for practically its entire length,

Asserts Thrift Key to Sound Post-War Economic Structure

Soundnes sof the nation's economic structure after the war rests on the rock of thrift on the part of everyone.

This was the message left with some 300 bank officials and employes by H. V. Prochnow, vice president of the First National bank, Chicago, who addressed the 36th annual meeting of Group 6 of the Ohio Bankers association at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night.

Coupled with thrift in winning the war and sound economis peace afterward is work, Prochnow said, and he emphasized that the need now is not so much for a five or six day work week but a "40-day month."

"A crack-pot paper hanger in Hungaria found that out. France which started a 30-hour week program found it out too late."

Stressing the importance of savings, the Chicago speaker pointed out that in the past 150 years the federal government spent 145 billions of dollars and this included the financing of five wars.

Proposed federal expenditures for the period from 1941-43 are 214 billions of dollars. That's 69 billion more than this nation spent in 150 years, he related.

Those tremendous expenditures must be paid and it's through saving that will help ease this load and assist toward a sound economic status after the war.

The speaker pointed out that his own banking enterprise in Chicago launched a program for

STIMSON PROBES FIGHT FOR TITLE

War Secretary Declares He's 'Shocked' as He Learns of Arrangements For Fight.

WASHINGTON — Secretary of War Stimson said today he was "shocked" over arrangements for the Joe Louis-Billy Conn championship prize fight and had started a personal investigation.

"I didn't know of the details until this morning," Stimson told his press conference. "I've been shocked at the situation.

"I am making a personal investigation which I hope to complete within 48 hours."

The war secretary's announcement was prompted by a question whether he would comment on the proposed Oct. 12 fight at the Yankee stadium in New York between Sergeant Louis, the heavyweight champion, and Private Conn. He

Findley Gives Up His Candidacy for High Court Seat

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Common Pleas Judge Guy B. Findley of Elyria today withdrew as a candidate for the state supreme court vacancy left by the death of Judge Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati.

In a letter to Secretary of State John E. Sweeney, Findley asked that his name be omitted from the ballot.

In a statement accompanying his letter, Findley said that his withdrawal was prompted by alleged irregularities in nominating petitions circulated for him in Cuyahoga county.

"I could withdraw all the Cuyahoga county signatures and rely on the sufficiency of those remaining," he said. "Friends suggest this course but the matter cannot be corrected to my satisfaction merely by arithmetic."

He said that as a judge his "controlling desire" was to "maintain the confidence of the people in the high integrity of the supreme court."

"I would rather maintain my reputation as a heritage for my family than to win any election," he said.

23 FEARED DEAD

DICKERSON, Md. —(AP)— Five persons, and perhaps as many as 23, were believed killed near here today after a rear-end collision of two Washington-bound passenger trains threw a pullman into a fast freight train passing on the B. & O. track. A Washington Evening Star reporter who made the indefinite count added that others may be trapped in the sleeper, which fell into a deep cut. O. M. Burdette of Dickerson reported earlier that only a few persons were believed killed or injured.

A hospital train with doctors and nurses was sent from Washington, 35 miles east.

Nine injured persons were admitted to the Frederick hospital more than an hour after the wreck. Among them was a man identified as Theodore Sproull, Warren, Ohio.

BLASTED: Nazi Sub Base Hit In RAF In Attack on Flensburg

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The large Nazi submarine base at Flensburg on Germany's north coast was blasted during the night by heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force, the air ministry announced today.

Other objectives in north and northwest Germany also were attacked, the communique said.

The assault was centered on the submarine building yards at Flensburg, in Schleswig-Holstein, the air ministry said.

Besides being an important shipbuilding center Flensburg is a vital industrial port. Iron and copper foundries are located in the city.

The RAF assault was the first against Germany proper since Saturday night when the city of Munich, Nazi party headquarters, and the industrial Saar area were bombed.

The air ministry announced that 10 bombers failed to return from the mission, indicating a force of at least 200 bombers took part in the raid.

Aircraft of the British coastal command meanwhile attacked an Axis convoy off the Dutch coast, scoring direct hits on three medium-sized vessels, the air ministry said.

The RAF assaults were acknowledged by the Berlin radio.

The broadcast, quoting DNB, official German news agency, termed the British bombings "isolated nuisance raids against the north German coastal area" but

HAMMERING: Allied Planes Raking Jap Bases Ceaselessly

(By International News Service)

GEN. DOUGLAS M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — American flying fortresses and speedy fighters are keeping up their ceaseless hammering of Japanese bases and supply lines in New Guinea in the Allied pattern of strategy which calls for the smashing of enemy attempts to supply ground forces checked in their overland drive against Port Moresby.

The latest foray by the flying fortresses again was directed at the Japanese base at Buna, on the southeastern coast of New Guinea where the enemy made one of their first landings on the big island. The fortresses swept over the enemy's airfield under the cover of darkness and dropped one-ton bombs on their target.

Large fires were left by the fortresses at Buna, which has been repeatedly attacked by American bombers and fighters. The fighters have unloosened hundreds of rounds of machine gun and cannon fire in their efforts to make the base untenable for the Japanese.

Four strong sweeps were made by Allied fighters in their latest assaults against Japanese supply lines. The operations covered a three hour period and considerable damage was inflicted, a communique said. The fighters also singled out enemy barges, a supply dump and a hastily erected Japanese camp for their heavy attacks.

Seven barges were spied by the fighter planes and they raked the enemy ships with cannon and ma-

PASSING DREAM

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

(Copyright, 1942.)

SYNOPSIS

Christmas dinner at the home of her widowed mother, Edith Graves, is not a happy occasion for Temple, an intelligent young woman, because tomorrow she will leave for Washington to take a job obtained for her by a Senator, who was a friend of her father's. Samuel Graves had died suddenly a year ago; his investments were worthless; this had compelled Temple to cut short her college education and enter a business school, which she detested. Temple lives in a college town. At the dinner are Edith's only son, Ron; his wife, Frances, a wealthy and selfish girl; their young son, Ronnie; Edith's daughter, Allison, 9, and Edith's mother, Mrs. Hallett. It is about a year before the United States entered the war. When Mrs. Hallett speaks ruefully about the people in Europe, Ron, affable and handsome, asks her to stop dwelling on that subject. Ron is vice president in the concern owned by Frances' father, and inclined to take things easy since his marriage. Frances refuses to think about the war because she wants nothing to interfere with her social life. Edith reminds Temple that she has an appointment with Dr. Harry McCormick, a brilliant chemistry instructor, who is much sought after by the girls. Until today he and Temple had been casual acquaintances, but tonight McCormick shows a marked interest in Temple. Presently he tells her the entrance of the United States in the war is inevitable and that he has decided to enlist.

CHAPTER III

With her chair turned to face the window Temple looked at the passing wintry landscape and thought sadly of her departure from her family. They had come down to the little station to see her off (all save Fran who did not get up) and Temple had been amazed that the look in her mother's face had been one of pride rather than of sorrow. For a little while they had huddled together on the frigid platform, Temple in her short beaver jacket that had been a gift of more affluent days, and her short brown skirt and boyish brown felt hat, her mother and grandmother in their accustomed black, Allison in the soiled old polo coat and Ronnie in a red snow suit in his father's arms.

They had all been very gay. No tears, no words of advice or caution for the departing daughter. And her mother had looked so proud that in all the memories of her Temple would remember the last most vividly. That morning several of her friends had called, but Harry had not called, though Temple, her mind sharpened by her last moments with him, had hoped that he would. It was so unfinished, that part of Harry that had revealed itself last night. It bewildered and angered her.

When at last the train had come, she had embraced them quickly and hurried away so that she would be the only one to cry. From the train window she saw them as though they had been framed in a picture . . . And now in retrospect their little faults were lovingly forgiven and their virtues magnified thricefold.

So she had dreamed while watching the changing scenes and thinking of those left behind . . . thinking of Harry, too. But of him she could reach no definite conclusion and her feelings alternated between anger and curiosity, between strong attraction she had felt last night and the indifference she had felt before last night.

She thought, "I won't think about him any more. I'll probably never see him again But it makes me angry that he waited until last night to explain himself and to be a person I could like a lot, a person who attracted me, a man I wanted to kiss me . . . Until last night I think he even bored me . . . Was it my fault?"

Temple had paid no attention to her fellow-passengers until a woman got on in New York, a woman whose vividness punctuated the scene like an exclamation point. For at the sound of a throaty feminine voice Temple turned her head, seeing a woman in an expensive green suit trimmed elaborately with squirrel and a completely absurd but utterly charming green hat over short flaming red hair. A woman graceful and worldly who might be any age over 30, who would have been ugly except for her clothes and exquisite grooming, a woman to be stared at, to command attention, who made people wonder whether they had seen her before . . . on the stage or in the newspapers . . . somewhere. Standing beside the chair next to Temple's her swift, nervous glance settled upon the girl and Temple, shy with strangers usually, smiled back before she looked out the window again.

As the train sped south and she tried to fasten her thoughts on Washington (Abby Booth, the Senator's secretary, who lived in the boarding house where she was to live was meeting her in Washington) she was conscious of the woman in the next chair. For the small, expensively shod black feet below the slim shapely ankles moved restlessly as though they found their small quarters intolerable and longed for activity. You could see them, Temple thought, walking over polished floors and Oriental rugs in big rooms. Out of the corner of her eye she saw the woman's thin hands nervously finger the pages of a picture magazine.

Presently the woman disappeared and Temple, thinking it wise to have luncheon on the train rather than in Washington with a girl she had never seen and with whom she had exchanged only two business letters, arose and went to the diner and was placed at a table opposite the woman.

"Trains are dreadfully crowded these days," the woman said in her deep, dramatic voice. "Especially trains to Washington."

Temple said, looking into the thin face. "Really? I'm going to Washington for the first time"

"Are you? To work, of course. Or rather, I presume to work."

"Yes, I have a job there"

The woman smiled. "And a place to live, I hope The housing problem is so bad that some people are getting married to conserve space."

"I have a place in a boarding house. I'm told that it is a sort of de luxe boarding house."

"I've heard of them. Old town houses. They're quite lovely inside."

As Temple ordered her luncheon she was aware that she was being studied, but not, she felt, unkindly. When she looked across the table again the woman said, "I'd like to be your age, going to Washington, going anywhere to my first job. Of course I'd like to know as much as I know now."

They did not speak again until they were drinking coffee and had lighted cigarets.

Then the woman said, "We'll be in Baltimore quite soon and then it's only a matter of half an hour or more. Is someone meeting you? Or am I being impertinent? It's simply that my car will be waiting and it would be no trouble to drop you off."

"Thank you, but someone is meeting me."

"Good. If I were your mother, I'd warn you of chance acquaintances, which is precisely what I am."

"It's very kind of you to want to help me."

"Perhaps I can. I'm Mrs. Wayne, Paula Wayne, and I live at the ——." She mentioned the name of a hotel so well known that Temple had heard of it.

Temple said, "Thank you. I don't know anyone there."

"Oh, but you will of course. There's so much going on you'll have to budget your time. Well, I suppose I'll go back and sit the rest of this out. Train travel drives me mad. And it doesn't help when I try to think how long it took the pioneers to go from New York to Washington. In fact, I think I'd still prefer it by horseback. More picturesque."

When they were sitting in their chairs again Paula said, "I'll have to try to remember if I know any young man in Washington. My friends are much too old for you. But you haven't told me your name"

"Temple Graves"

Paula looked at her with a frown "Temple? But why? Wasn't there a reason?"

"My grandmother is very religious She had an idea that I was —" Would Paula Wayne laugh? Others had when she had explained her name. "That I was a sort of temple. She told me once that every child is a temple of pride."

"Why, that's lovely! Yes, that is lovely Every child is a temple of pride—to his or her mother of course I like to think about that . . . a child as a temple Yes, I like that very much. Well, Temple, if some night you are lonely and there's nothing to do and if everything goes wrong and you want someone to talk to, call me. I'll try to make you glad that you sat next to me rather than next to some man who snored or 'looked' improper advances . . . We're coming into Baltimore You must visit here, too The countryside is particularly lovely, but it isn't to me as lovely as the Virginia country. I have a little farm in a most unfashionable section of Virginia."

In the confusion of some passengers getting off and others coming on she did not look at Paula Wayne until the train started again Then she saw that her eyes were closed, her face like a mask, the skin tightly drawn, the mouth grim. She made Temple feel young and gauche and unfinished, a mere fledgling. Her mother would probably not approve of Mrs. Wayne. But must she, Temple, judge the people she met by her mother's standards and the standards of their conventional little town?

Harry sprang to her mind and she saw him as liking Paula Wayne and being amused by her and talking her urbane language. Why had he said he feared her more than any girl he had ever known?

When Temple reached for her coat, Paula opened her eyes. A few minutes later they were standing in the aisle and Paula was saying over her shoulder, "Good-bye, dear." Then the train jerked to a stop and they were stepping off. Temple saw Paula Wayne walking beside her chauffeur.

"Are you Temple?" someone asked.

She turned quickly. In the strange cold station where other people seemed to know where they were going it was wonderful to hear her name spoken.

"Why, yes."

"Hello, I'm Abby Booth," a girl in black said. "You said you'd be wearing a beaver jacket." She held out her hand and Temple felt her firm handclasp "I'm very glad to know you, Temple, and I hope you'll like it."

In her mind she had seen Abby Booth as a tall efficient-looking person who would welcome her formally, talk about the weather and the Senator as they rode to the boarding house where she, Abby, would disappear from Temple's life forever. Instead Abby was a small girl with dark eyes and dark hair and a gracious manner. Her black coat was too large for her and her black oxfords and black hat had been bought for comfort rather than style. Yet there was dignity about her and a kindness and gentleness not to be disputed even on such short acquaintance.

HAVE YOU DISCOVERED Amazing New Wonder Bread With Its Taste-Thrilling "PATENTED FLAVOR"?

Women Quitting Old Kinds For It At The Rate Of 5,000 A Week Now!

Takes The Place Of Any White Bread Deficient In Natural Flavor, Vitamins And Minerals Because It Contains More Natural Flavor, Wheat Vitamins And Minerals

IF YOU want to add a new flavor thrill to the table you set, then you must try this amazing new "patented flavor" bread. Which has already taken the place of ordinary white bread in over 540,000 American homes. For these two reasons:

1. Because it brings more of the rich, natural flavor of wheat full-ripened in the sun than white bread robbed of Nature's bounty. Thus, is better for taste.
2. Because it contains more natural vitamins and minerals of wheat now than ever before thought possible.

You can see the difference at once. Gone is the chalk-white look of the ordinary baker's bread. Instead, this new "patented flavor" kind has the color of the cream on the top of the bottle of milk.

A Remarkable Discovery

Everybody knows the trouble with ordinary white bread. Made from flour bled white in refining to make a whiter loaf. Then Theodore Earle patented his discovery (U. S. Pat. Nos. 2143306, 2232697, 2155219, 2232696). And here is the secret of "patented flavor."

By removing the bad-tasting outer skin of the grain, you get this richer, better tasting loaf. A bread the color of cream; tender in texture and crust. And with more natural vitamins and minerals.

To obtain this amazing new "patented flavor" loaf—ask your grocer today for the new Wonder Bread. And see for yourself why women everywhere are quitting ordinary white bread for this new creamy kind at the rate of over 5,000 weekly.

A Great Thrill

Most people are astonished and thrilled by their first taste of this new "patented flavor" Wonder Bread. Not the flat insipid flavor of the usual chalk-white kind. But refreshingly different! Like the taste of fresh fruit after canned. You'll say it's marvelous!

ONLY WONDER BREAD HAS "PATENTED FLAVOR" Because Only Wonder Bread Is Made This Way From Earle Patented Process Flour Under U. S. Pat. Nos. 2143306, 2232697, 2155219, 2232696

Then, too, this new "patented flavor" Wonder Bread is doubly fresh—fresh when you buy it and fresh when you eat it. Because slo-baked for lasting freshness—baked 13% longer than many ordinary kinds.

See how much longer "patented flavor" Wonder Bread stays fresh in the bread box; how much longer sandwiches stay fresh in the lunch box.

Ask your grocer for the bread with "patented flavor"—the new Wonder Bread—today sure. You, too, will be delighted with it.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1942.

Congressional call of the week has been for "all good men to come to the aid of the parity."

It is reported that one South Seas tribe has no word in its vocabulary for "civilization"—which may be just as well, as the definition is in doubt at the moment.

Quoting Mr. Jeffers: "I ask every motorist, every truck driver, everybody who runs a car, to remember that he is now the custodian of a material more precious than gold."

Preparing for War Chest Campaign

PRELIMINARY work is already well under way for the Mansfield and Richland county War Chest campaign which is to be conducted in November.

The plan of combining the customary Community Fund drive with contributions designed to meet special wartime needs has been adopted by many cities as the logical course for this year and it appears wise that this procedure is to be followed in Mansfield and Richland county.

Appeals for aid, national and international, have become so numerous that it is impossible for the people of any one community to respond to all of them, nor is it possible for individuals to investigate the worthiness of each.

As was the case in the first World war, this responsibility is delegated to the executive committee of the War Chest organization, to decide on agencies that shall participate in the local fund.

Success of the Community Fund, through more than twenty years, in doing away with the need for frequent solicitations to support various essential agencies, has been such as to gain steadily increasing public co-operation and it is anticipated that the same willing response will be made when the needs of War Chest contributions are more fully presented.

Hoarded Silver Should Be Released

ONE OF THE FIRST MOVES, when it becomes the policy of the federal government to act for the general welfare instead of catering to selfish minority interests, will be to repeal the vicious silver purchase law which penalizes the entire country for the special benefit of six silver-producing states.

The government—which means the people of the United States—is now required to buy and store away silver at the fictitious price of 71 cents an ounce—about double its intrinsic value. As a result more than 40,000 tons of silver is buried in West Point vaults, serving no real purpose when it is badly needed for war and civilian industrial uses.

Under ordinary conditions the cost of storing away this silver at approximately double the world price would be nothing more than governmental extravagance induced by political favoritism—but now, when the nation is at war and when this silver is needed for USE, because of shortage of other metals, such hoarding is indefensible.

It is not the people of the United States who are complacent about war—it is their representatives in Washington who continue to permit such things as this silver racket to continue.

Origin of An Old Saying

SOME PEOPLE have a knack of "losing" things—never being able to find whatever it is they are looking for. An aggravated case of this sort was probably responsible for the old saying, "She'd* lose her head, if it wasn't fastened on."

Sugar rationing books are among the easily "lost" articles, as indicated by a statement from the local rationing office that as many as a dozen such "losses" were reported in one day.

"Losing," in most instances, is attributable to a habit of carelessness that usually has other manifestations, often embarrassing and sometimes costly.

As has been announced, "lost" sugar rationing books can be replaced—but not without inconvenience and delay—so the safest way is to HAVE A PLACE FOR THEM AND PUT THEM IN THEIR PLACE.

*Substitute "he'd" if you prefer.

Police Gazette Becomes Memory

MAYBE something happened to the Police Gazette in more recent years—something that justified banning it from the mails, as has been done by Postmaster General Walker, who condemns it for "profitably pandering to the lewd and lascivious."

Having no more than recollection of that barber shop favorite of many years ago, when Richard K. Fox controlled its destinies, it is difficult to imagine to what depths the Police Gazette must have fallen to have been singled out for special notice in a period when many periodicals have passed the bounds of moderate decency consistently maintained by the old-time Police Gazette—which, by present-day comparison would appear quite respectable.

Unforunately, being banned from the mails does not prevent distribution of unsavory publications by other means of transport, and in some instances the attention directed to them results in quick jump in news stand sales.

Two Philosophies Clash

THE PRESENT world crisis is a crucial struggle between those who believe in force and violence as the proper means of solving inter-personal and inter-group difficulties, and those who believe that such difficulties may be solved by processes involving mutual understanding and mutual adjustment based upon such understanding," says William V. Silverberg, professor in the New York medical college.

This sentence will bear reading over a couple of times. Force has to be used to check evil and preserve good, but it is never conclusive. For permanent peace there must finally be a "meeting of minds."

Age No Barrier To Service

A 57-YEAR-OLD MAN has just joined the marines. John B. Stetson, jr., former ambassador to Poland, has been sworn in as a major. His reason for entering this war is the one that got him into the last, "the necessity of crushing the German menace."

Before long it will not be exceptional to find men of Stetson's age in active service. If a man in his 50's is physically fit and not needed on the home front, he can find plenty of military duty to perform.

Weakness In Anti-Inflation Plans

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — No move even suggested so far will be more than a retarding influence on inflation, economists insist. Everything being proposed by President Roosevelt in this direction is admitted to be good. Everything likely to be done will prove to be a brake on skyrocketing of prices. But everything has a loophole through which PART of the price structure will be able to rise.

There are a couple of old sayings which apply. One of them is: "The way to begin is to begin." Another relates to public speaking. "The way to conclude is to stop. Not much brilliance about either, but plenty of understanding.

The way to prevent inflation is to freeze EVERYTHING—wages, prices, both farm and others, salaries, charges of all sorts. But, cry the objectors, that would lead to gross inequities. It would prevent all hope of righting present wrongs. That is true. Beyond any doubt, the economists admit, some workers are not properly renumerated for their toil at present. All farmers are not prosperous not even all efficient farmers.

That is a very sad situation, beyond question. Perhaps something ought to be done about it. But it is just as obvious as the nose on one's face that if these inequities are corrected, the cost of living MUST rise, so in turn the pay of OTHER workers must be increased, so the cost of things farmers buy will go up a little more, so all farm prices must be put up a little to compensate, and then round and round the spiral again and again. There is no end to it.

AS THE economists put it, the question is whether a few must continue to suffer what are perhaps unjustly low wages, or prices, or whether EVERYBODY must suffer the inevitable inflation that will follow attempts to correct these injustices.

There COULD be another way to correct present inequities without endangering us all, but NO ONE has suggested it. That would be something on the order of a congressional reapportionment, when congress is agreed that the size of the house of representatives must not be increased. Under that formula, if one state gains an additional member, some other state must lose one. Congress has had a hard time working out a compromise every time this has been done, despite the fact that the formula was in plain sight all the time. Every man voting knew that if New York gained a member, some other state must lose one. If Michigan gained two, two congressional districts somewhere else in the country had to be eliminated.

THERE is no such hard and fast formula for preventing a rise in the cost of living, for preventing the spiral upward which leads to inflation. In the case of congressional representation, there is an arrow pointing directly at the states to be cut. It results from the census figures.

But who is to determine that if the total cost of living is boosted fifty million dollars, by increasing the price of wheat, where the wage cuts of fifty millions are to be made to keep the keel balanced?

It's correcting these "inequities" which spell failure for any plan so far proposed.

Listen World!

Please, Mr. Artist!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M WRITING this to the Allied Artists of America, and the first genius who complies can have those "one dozen roses with my heart in beside them" for keeps.

After all, I'm not asking much. It shouldn't require great gobs of talent. But oh, what a relief it would be to this weary heart of mine—and I'll wager to a few million others—if just for once, Misters . . . just for one little teeny-weeny-bitty time . . . you'd please, please, paint a magazine cover that didn't have a Glamor Girl on it, or a Disney Doll, and give us instead an honest-to-goodness American sweetheart.

We won't mind if she's blond, brunet or red-head. Nor will we be fussy about the color of her eyes or the shape of her nose. As for her mouth, any of the standard patterns will do. But for Pete's sake, make her real. And DON'T dress her up like a fashion model.

Forget all those fancy city dishes that you serve up monthly and go out into the orchard or down to the factory or your own back kitchen and hand us the kind of girl that helped make this nation, and is actually running it still, if the truth were to be known.

Nix on the enameled nails—
The platinum ringlets—
The plucked eyebrows—
The peekaboo sandals—
The trick shorts and satin bathing suits—
The mascara and false lashes—
The carmined pouts—
And painted shins.

Just a laughing, sun-burned kid with a basket of tomatoes on her arm and a ragged denim shirt open over her tanned throat. Or a grinning, husky darling with a smudge on her nose, taken just as she stands by the assembly line, hair tucked under a big bandanna, with faded overalls and maybe a monkey wrench. Let 'em have freckles. Let 'em be tousled and wrinkled, with a little natural perspiration on their honest young skin. But please-please, MAKE HER AMERICAN!

You aren't picturing the boys who are saving this country, in tails and pearl studs. You're showing them just as they are, in their dirt and sweat and unshaved chins, God bless 'em. Then why can't you do the same by the girls who are backing those boys, the girls for whom those boys are really fighting? The healthy, wholesome, sweet, loyal girls who are going to mother our next generation and keep it democratic.

That's all I ask, gentlemen. Just one magazine cover with something on it that really looks like Miss America and not like a Schapiarelli model or a Strip Tease. And I'll wager Messrs. Rembrandt, Sargent and Whistler will seem like pikers.

Timely Editorial

Fact Reporters.

The American reporter taken captive by the Nazis during the British raid on Tobruk has been identified as Larry Allen, many of whose dispatches telling of what he saw with the British fleet in the Mediterranean have been published in the Globe.

Striking as Mr. Allen's work has been, he is also representative of other American frontline newsgatherers who are continually taking amazing risks in their endeavor to obtain close-up information of the struggle.

A recent compilation of what has happened to war correspondents gives the figure of eight dead and seventeen wounded. The missing were counted as eleven.

The people far away, in reading the accounts sent by these reporters, should realize that the service they are rendering is magnificient. Without them, the rest of us would have far less chance of appreciating what goes on. The reporter who accepts an assignment with a fighting unit should be regarded as a fact-finding hero. —Boston Globe.

Truth About Setbacks In Russia Withheld From German People

—By FREDERICK C. OECHSNER

AS THE SAVAGE FIGHT for Stalingrad goes into its 31st day, there are increasing signs of its strain on Nazi leadership and morale.

The reported relief from duty of Field Marshal von Bock is one of the most interesting straws in the wind to date. There is no confirmation of it from Germany but it has the earmarks of being true. Likewise, the reported protest of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel that he had inadequate air support for his recent unsuccessful offensive in Egypt (because planes could not be spared from the eastern front obviously) is significant.

Both developments, whether true or only half-true, reflect stresses and strains at the top of the Nazi military hierarchy which already have been definitely revealed in the Brauchitsch and Rundstedo recalls, and which are bound to increase as the costly Russian campaign drags on.

The actual cost in life among the generalcy on the eastern front also has been vastly higher than at any other time.

Looked at from the point of view of the average German who by now has almost certainly lost a close relative, the Russian campaign is bound to be a disappointment and no real end of the fighting is in sight. The methods of fighting on the eastern front—brought to the peak of fury at Stalingrad—also are sure to have a demoralizing effect on both fighting and home fronts.

AS A RESULT, the attempts of Nazi propaganda to explain to the people why Stalingrad has not fallen, and why the Caucasus campaign as a whole has not yet succeeded, have had to be stepped up in both frequency and intensity. The statement offered that "the Russians by superhuman ferocity have managed to delay certain decisions" does not contribute any more to the Germans than to anybody else. They know well enough that decisions have been delayed.

Efforts to divert attention outright from failures on the eastern front have also been numerous. The Nazi claim of having sunk 28 ships from an Allied convoy proceeding to Murmansk is typical. It was announced in one of those special communiques, well known to anyone who has lived in Germany during wartime, with elaborate musical buildup. Anyone listening to it on the radio in a public eating place had to stop rattling his knife and fork and to listen with respectful attention.

Nazi propaganda also has found it advantageous to point out anew what losing the war would mean to the German people. They made use of Secretary Knox's speech at the American Legion convention as an example. The distorted version of it given over the German radio warned the Germans that Knox threatened a peace which would provide that Germany and the Axis peoples be wiped from the face of the earth, which Knox did not say.

NOTHING, however, is said over the Nazi radio about the increasing disturbances in occupied countries which are at least an indirect result of the dragging out of the Russian campaign and the Russians' stand at Stalingrad. The reported increase in SS vigilance inside Germany itself to control possible disturbances there seems to be merely an extension of measures taken shortly after the invasion of Russia to report and crush grumbling and criticism.

It is a common and dangerous habit to indulge in wishful thinking about conditions in Germany, and to draw the conclusion that a collapse in morale is imminent. That should not be done in the present case, either. Hitler can go on dismissing generals without getting into serious trouble. The German people still are being kept ignorant of most of the real facts about the progress of the war, and being kept under strict discipline.

None of which alters the fact that everything that widens the cracks in German morale by even a little bit is as valuable as flying fortresses and General Grants.

Neutral Switzerland's Refugee Problem Recognized As Danger

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

LITTLE SWITZERLAND has ample cause for her anxiety over the large and increasing number of refugees who are begging admission at her frontiers, for there has been created a problem which Justice Minister von Steiger warns is endangering the security of the nation.

Apart from the economic strain on the country's limited resources, and the risk of acquiring undesirables, her neutrality might easily be placed in jeopardy. That neutrality is one of Switzerland's greatest treasures, since the independence which she has safeguarded for six and a half centuries is involved. She has no reason to fear the Allies, but a successful German invasion would mean bondage.

The Swiss success in maintaining their neutrality is one of the phenomena of the war. Their towering mountains afford them much protection, but because they stand in the heart of trouble those same peaks are exposed to international political blasts from all directions.

There are several reasons why the Swiss have been able thus far to keep out of the conflict. One of them is that the government has kept a shrewd and level head, but there's a lot more to it than that.

The Axis powers, and the Allies for that matter, find that Switzerland's neutrality provides them with an excellent listening post.

The country is full of the agents of both sides in the war. Travelers from many countries drift in and out, and leave behind them a trail of information.

Then Switzerland provides a useful medium through which the Axis can make money transactions necessary to provide funds for their workers (saboteurs and spies) abroad. German money is unacceptable abroad, but Swiss money is good the world over, and this can be secured by the Axis by creating a trade balance in their favor. Such transactions naturally are normal and in accord with neutrality.

SWITZERLAND also provides a general post-office for all nations. Undoubtedly Germany and her satellites receive not only information but money and other valuables in the mails. Also, all hands are happy to have the international Red Cross in Switzerland.

However, I should say that Swiss security from attack by Hitler rests largely in the fact that Germany and Italy must have access to the Simplon and St. Gothard railroads which pass through three of the world's longest tunnels — the Lotschberg, Simplon and Gothard—and are the chief highways between the Mediterranean and northern Europe.

Charles S. Foltz, jr., Associated Press correspondent, some time ago reported from Switzerland that streams of German, Dutch, Belgian, French, Czech and Polish cars, all in the service of the Axis, were passing southward into Italy with coal and iron, and on returning were bringing some bauxite (aluminum ore) which had been shipped from Yugoslavia to Trieste, and fruits and vegetables from Italy.

Now these tunnels have been heavily mined by the Swiss and undoubtedly would be blown up should Germany make an attack on Switzerland. It would take years to make the tunnels serviceable again. This seems to be the primary reason why the Axis powers haven't monkeyed with Swiss neutrality—they can't get along without those tunnels.

Health And Diet

Deafness Often Realized Too Late.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THE commonest form of deafness occurs to people in middle age and in the declining years of life. It is of very gradual onset and perhaps the most serious feature of the condition is that they do not realize what is happening to them.

Almost without exception they think in the early stages that it is not going to get any worse. Consequently they do not seek treatment and as it does get worse they become increasingly melancholy.

There is very little that the ear specialist can do for progressive catarrhal deafness. He can give some treatments designed to break up adhesions. There is an operation he can do, but it is not always successful. And he can arrange for hearing aids. But that is all he can do.

But the deaf person always has hope that his hearing is going to be completely restored. Or that the slight deafness in the beginning will be stationary. And the consequence is that he does not learn lip reading during the years when there is enough hearing left so that he can understand the lessons.

Learning lip reading does not come easy to those of years beyond childhood and adolescence, and it takes time. But if people would only understand that half their happiness will come from knowing it, they would try harder.

Must Face Realities.

It is certainly not a cheerful subject, but the facts of life are facts and they do not change just because we want them to. I think it better to face the realities, and the doctor would be a shameless doctor who did not make the beginning deaf person face the truth.

There are a few advantages to being deaf. Some occupations, such as bookkeeping and operating a machine, can be done by a deaf person even better than by one with good hearing: he has fewer distractions.

By all odds the worst feature of deafness so far as it affects personality is that the deaf person will not confess his disability either to his friends or to himself.

A Farmer's Diary

Chimney Swifts

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I STOOD along the street of a city south of here and watched a group of impatient, noisy birds spiraling about a tall chimney top. When I tried to count them, the numbers were confusing. Continuously they sailed above the chimney and one, two, sometimes three, swooping lower than the rest, went out of sight. It was near 8 o'clock at evening.

For a half hour they twittered and flew about in increasing numbers. With twilight more and more disappeared down the chimney. It was nearly dark when I stopped watching, and only a half dozen were left in view of all the hundreds I had noticed. A nighthawk came along, sailing gracefully, and drove these off. I wondered how many hundred swifts were niched each night in that old chimney—and if each had his own personal sleeping place in this sooty hotel.

These birds have sharp claws and their fan-like tail has sharp quills. They cling upright to their chimney wall, and brace themselves with the stiff tail. When not at home in their roosting and nesting place, they are never still. Their meals of insects—and they are ravenous eaters—are taken on the wing.

Thrifty New England housekeepers declare that swifts—like bats—carry bedbugs! Accordingly New Englanders screen their chimney tops before the birds arrive from the south.

The nests are loosely woven of twigs of trees, glued to the chimney inside with tree gum and bird saliva. Heat from an early fire—or a prolonged heavy rain storm—may cause the glue which holds the nests to melt and down will come "rockaby babies and all" into the bottom of the flue.

I observed a similar flock of swifts, on a wooded hill, near a hollow chestnut snag. After dark, with lighted matches, I moved about the spreading tree base. At one side I found a hole so large that I might have crawled inside and stood up—but I didn't.

A rough cone of tiny droppings at the center was more than a foot high, and more was constantly being added to the heap with a sound like drops of rain upon soft earth. I cautiously reached an arm inside, but could not touch the roosting swifts. Then, just for fun, I took a stick and pounded on the hollow trunk with a great racket.

A thunderous pounding of wings responded and a winding column of sooty birds — deep gray with white throats — whirled upward from the tall snag.

RUSSIANS GAIN IN STALINGRAD, WRECK BUILDING

Report Enemy Losses Swelled To 15,000 Daily as Battle Enters Second Month.

area said that not a single place inside the city could be described as safe. All the wounded were evacuated across the Volga to the east.

Latest military dispatches said that fighting in the Stalingrad area now has spread to a 46-mile long line near the Volga. The banks of the river are pitted with bomb craters and shell holes.

Women and children who could not be removed from the city and headquarters of the Soviet command were moved deep underground for safety. People remaining in the beleaguered city are hollow-eyed from lack of sleep.

Hundreds of Germans were reported killed when Soviet sappers blasted one of Stalingrad's main buildings which the Nazis had occupied. The large structure crumbled with a deafening roar when 250 pounds of dynamite was exploded by five Red army men who volunteered to carry 50 pounds of explosives apiece up to the building. The sappers rushed the building under intensive fire from Germans equipped with tommy guns.

The German forces pushed back inside Stalingrad suffered 600 casualties, a communique said.

Terrific street fighting raged in both the northern and southern portions of the city as the Germans, employing numerous tanks, sought to penetrate deeper and the Russians countered with artillery blasts and shellfire from gunboats on the Volga river.

German air forces roared over the city hour after hour and mobile Nazi field pieces maintained a non-stop barrage.

The Soviet high command said that repeated attacks by the Germans within the city were repulsed by the defenders and heavy losses inflicted on the Nazis.

In addition to the slaying of 600 Germans when the enemy was ousted from one position, Soviet forces slew 800 more Nazis on another sector.

The largest street battle so far occurred when several thousand Nazi infantrymen, supported by 200 tanks, thrust in toward the center of the city. Russian troops, battling back like wounded lions, repulsed 12 German assaults, dispatches from the front said. A total of 42 Nazi tanks were reported destroyed and the attacks were halted without the Russians giving up an inch of ground.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko launched renewed counter-drives northwest of the city after pounding the enemy heavily from the air. An artillery barrage followed the air bombardment by Russian planes escorted by fighters.

The Germans counter-attacked in some sectors, dispatches from the front said, but were repelled in desperate fighting near two villages.

Russian troops then broke into German positions and forced the Nazis to retire. The battle continued to rage with unabated fury as the Soviets pressed their assault.

Southeast of the fallen Black sea naval base of Novorossisk, the Red army high command said, superior numbers of German forces attacked Soviet positions but were repelled. Then the Russians counter-attacked and pressed the Germans back.

On the Leningrad front a series of German attacks in the area of Sinyavino were repulsed, the communique said.

The Soviet command at Stalingrad threw into action every available weapon in a determined effort to repulse the invaders.

Ships of the Volga river naval flotilla joined with artillery batteries in a merciless pounding of Nazi positions within the city.

The high command communique announced that 2,000 Germans had been slain in three days of fierce battling in the city's streets.

A large toll of German tanks was exacted by the Russian defenders, the communique said. A total of 86 were said to have been smashed in the shattered streets of Stalingrad.

Incessant air attacks in which as many as 2,000 Luftwaffe planes have been reported taking part in a single day were being continued by the Nazis, the Soviet high command admitted.

Tank and infantry battles raged on in the mid-Caucasus around Mozdok, 60 miles from the Grozny oil fields. A new offensive was launched in this area by the Germans but was repulsed, the high command said, after 200 Nazis were killed.

Four Axis regiments, supported by tanks, were disclosed to have launched a drive in the vicinity of Voronezh, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, and a four hour battle ensued. This assault was subdued and hundreds of dead were left on the battlefield. Two subsequent attacks also were repulsed and 1,500 Nazis killed.

In the Rzhev sector, 135 miles northwest of Moscow, the Nazis made a series of violent counter-attacks. Some villages changed hands several times during the fighting, it was said.

Makes New Promise Of Second Front

LONDON —(INS)— A new promise that a second front will be opened on the continent of Europe by the United Nations was given today to the French people as reports were received of further feverish activity by the Nazis to combat invasion.

An announcer for the British Broadcasting company, speaking in French, again urged the people of France to evacuate the coastal areas and to take other precautions.

"An offensive by the United Nations is being prepared," the BBC broadcast said.

The attack will be made without warning, the announcer said, but Frenchmen wishing to aid the United Nations in lifting the yoke of the Nazis will be fully advised in sufficient time.

Willkie To Report Red Disappointment

MOSCOW —(AP)— Wendell L. Willkie said today he would take back to Washington from Soviet Russia a story of growing disappointment and dissatisfaction over the failure of the United States and Britain to establish a second front.

"I feel it and you must," said Willkie.

He presented Joseph Stalin a large, thick and square envelope containing a personal message from President Roosevelt at a conference with the Soviet premier in the Kremlin last night.

To foreigners who have been working here since the Washington-London-Moscow agreements on the war were announced June 11 it has been no secret that individuals are gradually getting cooler treatment from the Russians, both officials and private citizens.

Stalin and Willkie, President Roosevelt's personal representative on a tour of strategic world centers frmo Cairo to Chungking, met for two hours.

With them was Vyacheslav Molotov, Soviet foreign commissar, who himself visited Allied war leaders in London and Washington last spring and returned with an announced complete uderstanding on "the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942."

Soviet newspapers published large pictures of Stalin and Willkie on their front pages.

advertising savings accounts and that today it has some $170,000,000 in savings deposits alone.

He urged bankers to continue aid in war financing through war bond purchases and through efforts to promote an even greater public sale of them.

The banking group which assembled here from nine counties earlier heard E. R. Reese, president of the Ohio Bankers association, also urge investments in war issues to safeguard the nation from inflation.

David M. Auch, secretary of the Ohio Bankers, that 85 per cent of war bonds have been sold through banks.

Last night's banquet followed a business session and an afternoon of golf at Westbrook Country club.

Russell W. Weatherwax, president of the Oglesby-Barnitz Bank and Trust company of Middletown, addressed the afternoon session on "What Should a Bank Do In War Time?" Interest rates, service charges, handling of war bonds and bank personnel problems were covered in his talk.

Paul M. Eliot, secretary-treasurer of the Farmers Savings and Trust company, and chairman of Group Six, presided at the sessions.

Paul A. Warner of the Knox county Savings and Loan company, Mt. Vernon, is vice chairman, and William B. Kuhn of the Citizens Bank of Shelby, is secretary-treasurer.

Serving as a reception committee were R. S. Gibson, John J. Charles, C. F. Fighter and H. R. Fiedler, all associated with Mansfield banks. Dean A. Eckert was chairman of the golf committee. Msgr. R. C. Goebel of St. Peter's Catholic church gave the banquet invocation.

STIMSON PROBES FIGHT FOR TITLE

declined to state what details "shocked" him.

When original sanction for the fight was given on Sept. 8, the war department announcement said that the entire net proceeds would be turned over to the Army Emergency Relief fund. The announcement said further that neither fighter nor any "private interest" would receive any return.

On Sept. 18, however, a change in this setup was announced by the committee of New York sports writers, named to handle the fight arrangements. Under the terms of this setup, which the committee said had been approved by the war department, it was agreed that Louis would receive $135,451.58 to pay off obligations. Conn was to receive $34,500 for the same purpose.

Louis' obligations, as announced by the sports committee, consisted of $58,805.50 to the Twentieth Century Sporting club, of which Promoter Mike Jacobs is the head, and $41,146.03 to one of his managers, John Roxborough. Conn's obligation also was said to be to the Twentieth Century Sporting club.

chine gun fire. The attacks against Japanese supply dumps and camp were also made in this initial sweep.

Other forays by the fighters were directed against Japanese anti-aircraft positions, supply huts and tents. An enemy pack train was spotted attempting to cross a bridge in the Kokoda sector, at the foot of the Owen Stanley mountain range where the Japanese succeeded in passing through a gap, and the fighter planes strafed both the bridge and the pack train. The results were not observed.

Allied ground forces still held Japanese troops pinned to the slopes of the Owen Stanley range, the latest communique reporting that the position in this sector was unchanged. The Japanese are approximately 32 airlin.. miles from their objective, Port Moresby, and action in this area for the past few days has been confined to patrol activity.

Reuters (British) news agency said in a dispatch from Sydney, which quoted operational base reports, that fierce patrol clashes occurred in the past few days in the mountain range.

(The dispatch added that the Japanese are believed to be running short of food and ammunition as a result of the almost ceaseless Allied air attacks against supply lines and bases. However, it was said that despite this fact, the enemy has been able to consolidate positions and improve installations on his supply track and in the back areas.)

CARIBU, Me.—(U.P.)—Army officials announced yesterday that R. K. Riddle of Delaware, O., was one of seven men killed when an army bomber crashed at Washburn, near Perham.

YES, MANSFIELD, ENGLAND, WE LIKE YOUR SON

And, What's More, It Seems That He's Impressed By Our Town.

"There are large shoe factories and a hosiery mill," he said, "but of course, they're all making munitions now. And Mansfield, England, is in the heart of the coal mining district not far from the large cities of Nottingham and Sheffield."

As soon as Turner got his first furlough in America, last week, he headed for Mansfield, Ohio, on the invitation of Mayor W. J. Locke.

"Whenever I told anyone where I was going, they told me it was a very beautiful city and I certainly have found it so," he said.

There's beauty in his home town, too, Turner admitted. He cited the Art School and the County Technical college.

"The college was built in about 1930 and offers evening classes at very reasonable cost in any technical subject you want," he said.

"Carr Bank is our most popular park. It is laid out in beautiful lawns and gardens. Not far away is the "Race Course" which used to be really a race course but is now open to the public with fields for all kinds of sports."

Turner mentioned miniature golf, tennis and football particularly.

He's going to see Friday night's game between the Mansfield Tygers and Elyria at Stadium field. And he's looking forward to it.

"Our football is played with a round ball," he said, "and it's mostly kicking and 'heading.' We have played your kind here in America. We teach our games to the Americans and they teach yours to us.

"Not long ago we had a softball game, but I think maybe the Americans were playing a joke on us because we were winning easily right up until the last couple of innings—I believe you call them—and then it was just too bad for us."

Turner said he had met mostly young American sailors just out of training and marveled at their enthusiasm.

"They're all excited and keep saying, 'We're going to win the war,'" he reported.

Turner volunteered for service in the British navy about three years ago and now holds the rank of able seaman. He has been on patrol duty in the north Atlantic and what action he has seen he lets you gather from the fact that his commanding officer has been decorated by King George VI "for skill and determination in sinking enemy submarines."

Asked if his ship had ever been torpedoed, Turner smiled and said, "We didn't let them get that close!"

Turner says British sailors still get their ration of rum every day.

It's piped aboard between 11 a. m. and noon daily, he said, with "Up spirits" and "woe to any man who spills a British sailor's rum."

On the subject of beverages, Turner has the traditional disgust for American tea. He says he's learning to like American coffee and, in fact, had two cups of it this morning. But he doesn't like American beer or cigarets very well, preferring "Mansfield Golden Drop" made in a famous old brewery in his home city and "Players" brand cigarets.

Turner has been aboard the destroyer Mansfield—one of fifty overage craft turned over to Great Britain by the United States early in the war and named for sister cities in the two nations.

"I'm not permitted to tell you where I was aboard the Mansfield," Turner said, "but I can tell you that it was manned by Norwegian seamen and that it is being used by the Norwegian navy in Allied operations."

Naturally reticent about giving any exact naval information, Turner said British censorship is very strict and that all his letters home are heavily censored.

At home are his parents. One brother is also serving in the navy, another in the British army, and a third in a government office. He has one sister who is married.

Probably one of the things Turner is proudest of is the boys' choir in his old school, High Oakham. It is widely known throughout England and he was a member of it more than 10 years ago.

When the question, inevitably directed at every sailor bobbed up, Turner grinned:

"I say, I think your American girls are real cute, I mean really smart although actually I've only met one formally so far. She certainly must have been the finest. Our girls at home in Mansfield, England, are much more shy."

Undoubtedly Able Seaman Turner is going to get to meet some more American girls. Mr. and Mrs. Wyllie are planning a special dinner of the city's Scotch and English people at which Turner will be the guest of honor. And their guest is planning to attend the farewell party to be given next week by the Richland Civic Victory committee at the Legion home for selectees about to enter military service.

Turner expects to be here for about six more days unless the fortunes of war bring him a telegram canceling his leave.

ATTACK BLASTS NAZI SUB BASE

Heavy Bombers Range Over North German Coast In Night Raid.

it was admitted that "some material damage and destruction" was caused.

Most of the damage, Berlin claimed, was inflicted on buildings in residential areas.

Eight British bombers were shot down, it was claimed.

DNB asserted that Luftwaffe bombers carried out attacks against objectives in a town of east England at night.

Prior to announcement of the RAF attack radio stations in Berlin, Munich, Koenigsberg, Leipzig, Budapest and Sofia went off the air, indicating an impending aerial assault.

The RAF had not been over Germany since Saturday night and early Sunday when Munich was blasted by a force of 200 bombers and industrial areas in the Saar valley were bombed.

The choral works of Johann Sebastian Bach include more than 250 sacred and secular cantatas.

ADMITS SLAYING OF HIS PARENTS

St. Louis Electrician Says Dispute Over Debts Caused Murder.

as told by authorities, related how, after he had grabbed a hand ax and killed his father, his mother, frantic with fear and grief, cried:

"Now look what you've done."

Her hands wildly clutched at her son as he turned in anger, struck her with his fist, then again took up the bloody weapon and slashed her repeatedly.

"I hit her on the head, shoulders and back," Nash said. "I placed his body in the trunk and then I threw her body on the floor."

His confession detailed how he drove to the Nash home, changed his bloody clothes and began motoring to Illinois. About 30 miles east of East St. Louis, Ill., Nash said, he tossed out his bundle of clothes.

The stolid electrician told how he abandoned the car north of Springfield because of a second flat tire and went to the city in search of a new tire.

It was then he hitch-hiked a ride with James McCue, a coal hauler, who, officers said, identified Nash last night in a police showup and provided authorities with what they said was the first real break in the case.

Before announcing Nash's confession, Acting Chief of Police Andrew Aylward had said that young Nash a few days ago had admitted mailing a premium on a $2,000 insurance policy on the life of his father.

CURTAILMENT OF IMPORTS TURNS BEER INTO LUXURY IN HAWAII

(By International News Service)

HONOLULU—Since Pearl Harbor, when total war first blighted the carefree spirit of this Pacific paradise, every hardship and inconvenience had been taken in stride.

But today the good people of Honolulu voiced their first vigorous complaint.

There was a critical shortage of beer!

The law of supply and demand is running in reverse as two Honolulu breweries try to do the impossible—cater to a civilian population of 200,000 and (censored numbers) armed troops.

Demand for beer here uses 300,000 cases of suds monthly. Local breweries, however, can produce only 150,000 cases. The rest is imported—or was imported before the war.

No bottled or barreled beer has come from the mainland for several months, and there has been no official indication as to when or if beer shipments will be resumed.

When cafes and wet spots hung up cryptic signs: "No More Beer!" about the only group which did not complain was the local temperance society.

Officials explained that valuable cargo space on convoys obviously cannot be taken up by such luxuries as beer. The chronic complainers, however, argued:

"Beer is a necessity—for morale purposes."

Hawaii brewers must work a 16-hour shift normally to produce one-third of the beer demand. Their toils have become fruitless; they haven't the goods to work with. Both breweries recently began operating short shifts, not because of a labor shortage but because of the lack of imported malt and other essentials.

The manager of a local brewery assured me that service men would be taken care of. "We can turn out enough beer for soldiers and sailors—and we'll see they get it. Too bad about civilians—but this is war."

Many bars now feature strange concoctions which were brainstormed to appease the erstwhile beer tipplers. You can buy a "Pearl Harbor," which is sherry and soda. A "Jitterbug" is sake and coke. "Flingding" is gin and port—and the management recommends only one to each cash customer.

Whiskey and wine—strictly rationed—still are available. But, no longer do they Roll Out the Barrel in Honolulu, and The Beer Barrel Polka has become a funeral dirge for lamenting ex-beer advocates.

FLIER TRAINING COSTS $15,000

AUSTIN, Tex.—(U.P.)—Texas athletic coaches who attended a U. S. Navy physical fitness school here got a dollars-and-cents valuation of proper training.

It costs the government $15,000 to train a Navy aviator, Lt. Wesley Brown explained. If a flier is forced down in enemy territory or away from immediate rescue, his physical fitness probably will determine whether he returns to fight again.

Fliers who get back to their squadron thus save considerable expense and time of the armed forces.

RUSSIANS GAIN IN STALINGRAD, WRECK BUILDING

Report Enemy Losses Swelled To 15,000 Daily as Battle Enters Second Month.

area said that not a single place inside the city could be described as safe. All the wounded were evacuated across the Volga to the east.

Latest military dispatches said that fighting in the Stalingrad area now has spread to a 46-mile long line near the Volga. The banks of the river are pitted with bomb craters and shell holes.

Women and children who could not be removed from the city and headquarters of the Soviet command were moved deep underground for safety. People remaining in the beleaguered city are hollow-eyed from lack of sleep.

Hundreds of Germans were reported killed when Soviet sappers blasted one of Stalingrad's main buildings which the Nazis had occupied. The large structure crumbled with a deafening roar when 250 pounds of dynamite was exploded by five Red army men who volunteered to carry 50 pounds of explosives apiece up to the building. The sappers rushed the building under intensive fire from Germans equipped with tommy guns.

The German forces pushed back inside Stalingrad suffered 600 casualties, a communique said.

Terrific street fighting raged in both the northern and southern portions of the city as the Germans, employing numerous tanks, sought to penetrate deeper and the Russians countered with artillery blasts and shellfire from gunboats on the Volga river.

German air forces roared over the city hour after hour and mobile Nazi field pieces maintained a non-stop barrage.

The Soviet high command said that repeated attacks by the Germans within the city were repulsed by the defenders and heavy losses inflicted on the Nazis.

In addition to the slaying of 600 Germans when the enemy was ousted from one position, Soviet forces slew 800 more Nazis on another sector.

The largest street battle so far occurred when several thousand Nazi infantrymen, supported by 200 tanks, thrust in toward the center of the city. Russian troops, battling back like wounded lions, repulsed 12 German assaults, dispatches from the front said. A total of 42 Nazi tanks were reported destroyed and the attacks were halted without the Russians giving up an inch of ground.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko launched renewed counter-drives northwest of the city, after pounding the enemy heavily from the air. An artillery barrage followed the air bombardment by Russian planes escorted by fighters.

The Germans counter-attacked in some sectors, dispatches from the front said, but were repelled in desperate fighting near two villages.

Russian troops then broke into German positions and forced the Nazis to retire. The battle continued to rage with unabated fury as the Soviets pressed their assault.

Southeast of the fallen Black sea naval base of Novorossisk, the Red army high command said, superior numbers of German forces attacked Soviet positions but were repelled. Then the Russians counter-attacked and pressed the Germans back.

On the Leningrad front a series of German attacks in the area of Sinyavino were repulsed, the communique said.

The Soviet command at Stalingrad threw into action every available weapon in a determined effort to repulse the invaders.

Ships of the Volga river naval flotilla joined with artillery batteries in a merciless pounding of Nazi positions within the city.

The high command communique announced that 2,000 Germans had been slain in three days of fierce battling in the city's streets.

A large toll of German tanks was exacted by the Russian defenders, the communique said. A total of 86 were said to have been smashed in the shattered streets of Stalingrad.

Incessant air attacks in which as many as 2,000 Luftwaffe planes have been reported taking part in a single day were being continued by the Nazis, the Soviet high command admitted.

Tank and infantry battles raged on in the mid-Caucasus around Mozdok, 60 miles from the Grozny oil fields. A new offensive was launched in this area by the Germans but was repulsed, the high command said, after 200 Nazis were killed.

Four Axis regiments, supported by tanks, were disclosed to have launched a drive in the vicinity of Voronezh, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, and a four hour battle ensued. This assault was subdued and hundreds of dead were left on the battlefield. Two subsequent attacks also were repulsed and 1,500 Nazis killed.

In the Rzhev sector, 135 miles northwest of Moscow, the Nazis made a series of violent counter-attacks. Some villages changed hands several times during the fighting, it was said.

Makes New Promise Of Second Front

LONDON —(UNS)— A new promise that a second front will be opened on the continent of Europe by the United Nations was given today to the French people as reports were received of further feverish activity by the Nazis to combat invasion.

An announcer for the British Broadcasting company, speaking in French, again urged the people of France to evacuate the coastal areas and to take other precautions.

"An offensive by the United Nations is being prepared," the BBC broadcast said.

The attack will be made without warning, the announcer said, but Frenchmen wishing to aid the United Nations in lifting the yoke of the Nazis will be fully advised in sufficient time.

Willkie To Report Red Disappointment

MOSCOW —(AP)— Wendell L. Willkie said today he would take back to Washington from Soviet Russia a story of growing disappointment and dissatisfaction over the failure of the United States and Britain to establish a second front.

"I feel it and you must," said Willkie.

He presented Joseph Stalin a large, thick and square envelope containing a personal message from President Roosevelt at a conference with the Soviet premier in the Kremlin last night.

To foreigners who have been working here since the Washington-London-Moscow agreements on the war were announced June 11 it has been no secret that individuals are gradually getting cooler treatment from the Russians, both officials and private citizens.

Stalin and Willkie, President Roosevelt's personal representative on a tour of strategic world centers frmo Cairo to Chungking, met for two hours.

With them was Vyacheslav Molotov, Soviet foreign commissar, who himself visited Allied war leaders in London and Washington last spring and returned with an announced complete uderstanding on "the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942."

Soviet newspapers published large pictures of Stalin and Willkie on their front pages.

advertising savings accounts and that today it has some $170,000,000 in savings deposits alone.

He urged bankers to continue aid in war financing through war bond purchases and through efforts to promote an even greater public sale of them.

The banking group which assembled here from nine counties earlier heard E. R. Reese, president of the Ohio Bankers association, also urge investments in war issues to safeguard the nation from inflation.

David M. Auch, secretary of the Ohio Bankers, that 85 per cent of war bonds have been sold through banks.

Last night's banquet followed a business session and an afternoon of golf at Westbrook Country club.

Russell W. Weatherwax, president of the Oglesby-Barnitz Bank and Trust company of Middletown, addressed the afternoon session on "What Should a Bank Do In War Time?" Interest rates, service charges, handling of war bonds and bank personnel problems were covered in his talk.

Paul M. Eliot, secretary-treasurer of the Farmers Savings and Trust company, and chairman of Group Six, presided at the sessions.

Paul A. Warner of the Knox county Savings and Loan company, Mt. Vernon, is vice chairman, and William B. Kuhn of the Citizens Bank of Shelby, is secretary-treasurer.

Serving as a reception committee were R. S. Gibson, John J. Charles, C. F. Fighter and H. R. Fiedler, all associated with Mansfield banks. Dean A. Eckert was chairman of the golf committee. Msgr. R. C. Goebel of St. Peter's Catholic church gave the banquet invocation.

STIMSON PROBES FIGHT FOR TITLE

declined to state what details "shocked" him.

When original sanction for the fight was given on Sept. 8, the war department announcement said that the entire net proceeds would be turned over to the Army Emergency Relief fund. The announcement said further that neither fighter nor any "private interest" would receive any return.

On Sept. 18, however, a change in this setup was announced by the committee of New York sports writers, named to handle the fight arrangements. Under the terms of this setup, which the committee said had been approved by the war department, it was agreed that Louis would receive $135,451.53 to pay off obligations. Conn was to receive $34,500 for the same purpose.

Louis' obligations, as announced by the sports committee, consisted of $58,805.50 to the Twentieth Century Sporting club, of which Promoter Mike Jacobs is the head, and $41,146.03 to one of his managers, John Roxborough. Conn's obligation also was said to be to the Twenfieth Century Sporting club.

chine gun fire. The attacks against Japanese supply dumps and camp were also made in this initial sweep.

Other forays by the fighters were directed against Japanese anti-aircraft positions, supply huts and tents. An enemy pack train was spotted attempting to cross a bridge in the Kokoda sector, at the foot of the Owen Stanley mountain range where the Japanese succeeded in passing through a gap, and the fighter planes strafed both the bridge and the pack train. The results were not observed.

Allied ground forces still held Japanese troops pinned to the slopes of the Owen Stanley range, the latest communique reporting that the position in this sector was unchanged. The Japanese are approximately 32 airli.. miles from their objective, Port Moresby, and action in this area for the past few days has been confined to patrol activity.

Reuters (British) news agency said in a dispatch from Sydney, which quoted operational base reports, that fierce patrol clashes occurred in the past few days in the mountain range.

(The dispatch added that the Japanese are believed to be running short of food and ammunition as a result of the almost ceaseless Allied air attacks against supply lines and bases. However, it was said that despite this fact, the enemy has been able to consolidate positions and improve installations on his supply track and in the back areas.)

CARIBU, Me.—(UP)—Army officials announced yesterday that R. K. Riddle of Delaware, O., was one of seven men killed when an army bomber crashed at Wasburn, near Perham.

And, What's More, It Seems That He's Impressed By Our Town.

"There are large shoe factories and a hosiery mill," he said, "but of course, they're all making munitions now. And Mansfield, England, is in the heart of the coal mining district not far from the large cities of Nottingham and Sheffield."

As soon as Turner got his first furlough in America, last week, he headed for Mansfield, Ohio, on the invitation of Mayor W. J. Locke.

"Whenever I told anyone where I was going, they told me it was a very beautiful city and I certainly have found it so," he said.

There's beauty in his home town, too, Turner admitted. He cited the Art School and the County Technical college.

"The college was built in about 1930 and offers evening classes at very reasonable cost in any technical subject you want," he said.

"Carr Bank is our most popular park. It is laid out in beautiful lawns and gardens. Not far away is the "Race Course" which used to be really a race course but is now open to the public with fields for all kinds of sports."

Turner mentioned miniature golf, tennis and football particularly.

He's going to see Friday night's game between the Mansfield Tygers and Elyria at Stadium field. And he's looking forward to it.

"Our football is played with a round ball," he said, "and it's mostly kicking and 'heading.' We have played your kind here in America. We teach our games to the Americans and they teach yours to us.

"Not long ago we had a softball game, but I think maybe the Americans were playing a joke on us because we were winning easily right up until the last couple of innings—I believe you call them—and then it was just too bad for us."

Turner said he had met mostly young American sailors just out of training and marveled at their enthusiasm.

"They're all excited and keep saying, 'We're going to win the war,'" he reported.

Turner volunteered for service in the British navy about three years ago and now holds the rank of able seaman. He has been on patrol duty in the north Atlantic and what action he has seen he lets you gather from the fact that his commanding officer has been decorated by King George VI "for skill and determination in sinking enemy submarines."

Asked if his ship had ever been torpedoed, Turner smiled and said, "We didn't let them get that close!"

Turner says British sailors still get their ration of rum every day.

It's piped aboard between 11 a. m. and noon daily, he said, with "Up spirits" and "woe to any man who spills a British sailor's rum."

On the subject of beverages, Turner has the traditional disgust for American tea. He says he's learning to like American coffee and, in fact, had two cups of it this morning. But he doesn't like American beer or cigarets very well, preferring "Mansfield Golden Drop" made in a famous old brewery in his home city and "Players" brand cigarets.

Turner has been aboard the destroyer Mansfield—one of fifty overage craft turned over to Great Britain by the United States early in the war and named for sister cities in the two nations.

"I'm not permitted to tell you where I was aboard the Mansfield," Turner said, "but I can tell you that it was manned by Norwegian seamen and that it is being used by the Norwegian navy in Allied operations."

Naturally reticent about giving any exact naval information, Turner said British censorship is very strict and that all his letters home are heavily censored.

At home are his parents. One brother is also serving in the navy, another in the British army, and a third in a government office. He has one sister who is married.

Probably one of the things Turner is proudest of is the boys' choir in his old school, High Oakham. It is widely known throughout England and he was a member of it more than 10 years ago.

When the question, inevitably directed at every sailor bobbed up, Turner grinned:

"I say, I think your American girls are real cute, I mean really smart although actually I've only met one formally so far. She certainly must have been the finest. Our girls at home in Mansfield, England, are much more shy."

Undoubtedly Able Seaman Turner is going to get to meet some more American girls. Mr. and Mrs. Wyllie are planning a special dinner of the city's Scotch and English people at which Turner will be the guest of honor. And their guest is planning to attend the farewell party to be given next week by the Richland Civic Victory committee at the Legion home for selectees about to enter military service.

Turner expects to be here for about six more days unless the fortunes of war bring him a telegram canceling his leave.

ATTACK BLASTS NAZI SUB BASE

Heavy Bombers Range Over North German Coast In Night Raid.

it was admitted that "some material damage and destruction" was caused.

Most of the damage, Berlin claimed, was inflicted on buildings in residential areas.

Eight British bombers were shot down, it was claimed.

DNB asserted that Luftwaffe bombers carried out attacks against objectives in a town of east England at night.

Prior to announcement of the RAF attack radio stations in Berlin, Munich, Koenigsberg, Leipzig, Budapest and Sofia went off the air, indicating an impending aerial assault.

The RAF had not been over Germany since Saturday night and early Sunday when Munich was blasted by a force of 200 bombers and industrial areas in the Saar valley were bombed.

The choral works of Johann Sebastian Bach include more than 250 sacred and secular cantatas.

ADMITS SLAYING OF HIS PARENTS

St. Louis Electrician Says Dispute Over Debts Caused Murder.

as told by authorities, related how, after he had grabbed a hand ax and killed his father, his mother, frantic with fear and grief, cried:

"Now look what you've done."

Her hands wildly clutched at her son as he turned in anger, struck her with his fist, then again took up the bloody weapon and slashed her repeatedly.

"I hit her on the head, shoulders and back," Nash said. "I placed his body in the trunk and then I threw her body on the floor."

His confession detailed how he drove to the Nash home, changed his bloody clothes and began motoring to Illinois. About 30 miles east of East St. Louis, Ill., Nash said, he tossed out his bundle of clothes.

The stolid electrician told how he abandoned the car north of Springfield because of a second flat tire and went to the city in search of a new tire.

It was then he hitch-hiked a ride with James McCue, a coal hauler, who, officers said, identified Nash last night in a police showup and provided authorities with what they said was the first real break in the case.

Before announcing Nash's confession, Acting Chief of Police Andrew Aylward had said that young Nash a few days ago had admitted mailing a premium on a $2,000 insurance policy on the life of his father.

"SALADA" TEA

CURTAILMENT OF IMPORTS TURNS BEER INTO LUXURY IN HAWAII

(By International News Service)

HONOLULU—Since Pearl Harbor, when total war first blighted the carefree spirit of this Pacific paradise, every hardship and inconvenience had been taken in stride.

But today the good people of Honolulu voiced their first vigorous complaint.

There was a critical shortage of beer!

The law of supply and demand is running in reverse as two Honolulu breweries try to do the impossible—cater to a civilian population of 200,000 and (censored numbers) or armed troops.

Demand for beer here uses 300,000 cases of suds monthly. Local breweries, however, can produce only 150,000 cases. The rest is imported—or was imported before the war.

No bottled or barreled beer has come from the mainland for several months, and there has been no official indication as to when or if beer shipments will be resumed.

When cafes and wet spots hung up cryptic signs: "No More Beer!" about the only group which did not complain was the local temperance society.

Officials explained that valuable cargo space on convoys obviously cannot be taken up by such luxuries as beer. The chronic complainers, however, argued:

"Beer is a necessity—for morale purposes."

Hawaii brewers must work a 16-hour shift normally to produce one-third of the beer demand. Their tools have become fruitless; they haven't the goods to work with. Both breweries recently began operating short shifts, not because of a labor shortage but because of the lack of imported malt and other essentials.

The manager of a local brewery assured me that service men would be taken care of. "We can turn out enough beer or soldiers and sailors—and we'll see they get it. Too bad about civilians—but this is war."

Many bars now feature strange concoctions which were brainstormed to appease the erstwhile beer tipplers. You can buy a "Pearl Harbor," which is sherry and soda. A "Jitterbug" is sake and coke "Flingding" is gin and port—and the management recommends only one to each cash customer.

Whiskey and wine—strictly rationed—still are available. But no longer do they Roll Out the Barrel in Honolulu, and The Beer Barrel Polka has become a funeral dirge for lamenting ex-beer advocates.

FLIER TRAINING COSTS $15,000

AUSTIN, Tex.—(U.P.)—Texas athletic coaches who attended a U. S. Navy physical fitness school here got a dollars-and-cents valuation of proper training

It costs the government $15,000 to train a Navy aviator, Lt Wesley Brown explained If a flier is forced down in enemy territory or away from immediate rescue, his physical fitness probably will determine whether he returns to fight again.

Fliers who get back to their squadron thus save considerable expense and time of the armed forces.

DAUGHTER IS TOO STRONG

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — (U.P.) — Mrs. John Martin, 43, would prefer her daughter, Mrs. Juanita Britt, a little less demonstrative. Mrs. Britt embraced her mother too affectionately and sent her to the hospital with a possible rib fracture.

WOMEN WIN PRIZES IN STATE CONTEST

Members of Mansfield Garden Clubs Receive Awards For Flower Arrangements at Garden Club of Ohio Meeting.

THREE MANSFIELD women were awarded prizes in the "Harvest Home Exhibit" contest at the annual meeting of the Garden Club of Ohio in Cleveland yesterday. And an article submitted by another local club member appeared on the program for the day. The meeting was held at the Higbee company store in Cleveland with members of garden clubs from all sections of the state in attendance.

At the luncheon which followed the morning business meetings, five Garden Club of Ohio awards were presented. The afternoon program and exhibits were held in the auditorium. Mrs. Harry Longsdorf of the Town and Country Garden Club was awarded third prize in one of the contests for her all-red arrangement of geraniums and English ivy.

Two Astowela Garden club members who were winners were Mrs. C. V. McConnell, recipient of second prize in the contest for combinations of flowers, fruits and vegetables, and Mrs. York Dirlam, whose arrangement called "Peace" won honorable mention. For her entry, Mrs. Dirlam filled a Madonna head with white lilies and candles and placed it on dubonnet velvet. Thirty-four clubs entered 110 arrangements in the four contests.

The printed program, "Garden Greetings," contained a letter composed by Mrs. H. N. Keene, also a member of the Astowela club, and addressed to her niece. Its subject was "Planting Annual Flower Seeds in the Fall."

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I rose quickly, lifted Lillian to her feet and pressed her head against my shoulder. I knew her fit of contrition must spend itself before I could count on the aid I needed from her.

"Cry it out, darling," I urged her. "You have been under a terrific strain Don't try to think until you've let yourself go a bit."

But after one long, shuddering sob, she drew herself erect and faced me steadily.

"I'll go back to your babies as soon as I may," she said "At the farm there'll be no danger of my doing anything rash which could harm my own dear child. But first tell me more about Carolyn's reactions. The little beast! To think how nearly I played into her hands!"

Then, the next instant, her strong sense of justice found vent in contrite speech.

Lillian Penitent.

"I'm sorry I called her that, Madge," she said. "We must give her the benefit of the doubt, but I agree that she must be given no opportunity to endanger Marion."

Her keen brain was functioning again, and I knew I should have no more trouble with her about Carolyn.

"Don't worry! She's under guard every second of the time," I said. "But I don't think she's innately evil, and I don't believe she would do anything to harm Marion unless she was terrified to the point of desperation. In that she is different from Marion. Our girl would die, or suffer any torture, before she would betray a friend Of course Carolyn may have hidden reserves of character of which we know nothing, but I always have thought her a much weaker character than Marion.

"I've known that for a long time," Lillian said. "But have you any reason to believe Marion is shielding Carolyn? It must be something bad, for Marion is pretty level-headed, and doesn't go off the deep end readily. And poor Helena! If only she never has to know!"

I angrily compared Helena Brixton's rage at Marion to Lillian's affectionate solicitude, but reminded myself of Helena's mental and spiritual limitations. Lillian's spirit is that of all great men and women, utterly selfless.

I did indeed have a conjecture about Carolyn's secret, but it was merely a fantastic guess with no shred of evidence to support it.

Gangster In Custody.

"No I haven't any idea," I said, "but I think it is some secret affecting only Carolyn and that collegiate gangster, not connected yet with the big thing the gangsters are after — information about Jack's cryptograms. But until this young gangster can get Carolyn into his power, I believe he will let his associates think he has simply 'fallen for the moll,' as they would put it What plan he really has, nobody knows yet, but we can be sure he never will carry it out. Carolyn and Marion are beyond his power to harm"

"How is that?" she queried. Then comprehension flashed into her eyes.

"Oh, he is the man Dicky put off the train without his shoes, and whose capture he arranged!" she exclaimed. "Oh, marvelous! If I know your father, he'll be kept incommunicado for a long while."

ENTERPRISE AND initiative, sustained by sound principles and good judgment are likely to attain real heights of accomplishment, according to the auguries in this day's astrological chart. This creative ability may be centered on the production of some unusual, strange but practical invention or project in which capital will be readily forthcoming.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy the fruits of a well-organized plan or projects out of the ordinary but thoroughly practical and appreciated by those in influence as well as by the public at large. These are ready to give suitable support and recognition for real merit, industry and perseverance.

Pinochle and rummy were played with prizes going to Mrs. Stephen Letang, the Misses Eleanor Star and Pearl Enderle, who presented their awards to Miss Enderle. Theme for evening was a Halloween decoration. Another shower is being planned by Miss Enderle's office associates next week.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GUARD AGAINST LIES

"Believe only part of what you see, and none of what you hear." That would be silly if we tried to apply it literally to bridge. But a certain amount of scepticism is necessary to success in anything. Declarers who think they can count absolutely on a certain defender holding a particular card, because he made a certain bid, and then base their play upon that assumption, put themselves in line for rude jolts.

After East led the diamond 3, the 9 being played from dummy and West putting on the Q, North did some thinking. East could not have had a sound bid of his diamonds, he reckoned, unless he had the heart A or else a six-card suit. Apparently the only trick North had to lose, before taking in the needed ninth, would be one in hearts. If that was won by East, North would have two diamond stoppers in case he took the first trick with the K, as East would have to lead up to the J-5. If West won it, he reckoned, then East would have a six-card diamond suit and West only a singleton Q, so that West could not lead through the diamond J.

On that foundation, North took the first diamond with the K, ran five clubs and then led the heart 6. West took this with the A, led back his diamond 4, and the J was trapped, East taking the four diamond tricks which beat the contract.

If North had played safe, letting the diamond Q win, he would have made the contract. The 4 to the J and A would have been followed by the 2 to the K Five clubs would have followed, then the heart 6 to the A. No matter what West returned, it would not be a diamond, so game would have been sure.

Tomorrow's Problem.

CAN'T STAY OUT

At 54 He's in Army For Third Time Since 1905.

TOLEDO, O. —(U.P.)— Willis D. Helms just can't keep out of the army.

In 1905 he entered the service and stayed in until 1910. When discharged, he was a sergeant.

When 1915 rolled around he joined up again, this time being commissioned as a lieutenant. He was later promoted to an air corps captaincy and remained with the armed forces until 1922.

When Uncle Sam got into another war, it didn't take him long to sign up. He's 54 now, though, and that prevented a commission being offered him. In February he enlisted as a private. He's now a private first class, stationed "somewhere in the Pacific."

SOLDIER GETS JUST 35 CENTS

CAMP ROBINSON, Ark —(U.P.) —Unlike other soldiers here, Pvt. Charles Jermane shows little concern when payday comes.

When Jermane entered the army, he subscribed for an $18.75 war bond monthly. And since he is married, $22 of his pay goes to his wife.

Lastly, to provide for the future, Jermane pays $8.90 out of his check for service life insurance. So on payday when Jermane's name is called out, he steps up smartly and collects a check—for 35 cents.

TAKES CAMP POSITION

GALION — Mildred Schramek, who has been employed as bookkeeper at the East Side Buckeye dairy store, began her new duties Tuesday in a similar position at Camp Millard, Bucyrus.

VITAMIN CRIME WAVE STRIKE

LONDON —(INS)— Now that this year's harvest, from Britain's "Dig for Victory" garden is beginning to come forth a new type of crime is noted in the courtrooms. These are committed by the guys who swipe from their neighbor's gardens.

One such chap, who was caught red-handed, was asked for an explanation. But he couldn't explain; in fact, he couldn't talk. Reason? His mouth was too full of the onions he'd pulled up.

DOCTORS VERIFY NURSE KENNY'S SPASM THEORY

Nine-Year Fight For Approval Of Infantile Paralysis Hypothesis Ends.

(By the United Press)

CHICAGO—A nine-year fight by an Australian nurse for formal recognition by the medical profession of her revolutionary treatment of infantile paralysis has resulted in the Journal of the American Medical association.

Two specialists appointed by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis verfied the contention of Nurse Elizabeth Kenny of Australia that muscle spasm is a damaging and ever present symptom of the disease.

Drs. R. Plato Schwartz and Harry D. Bouman of the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, Rochester, N. Y., revealed the results of their research in an article on muscular spasm in infantile paralysis published in the journal.

Kenny Exercises Parts.

Miss Kenny opposed the traditional method of immobilization of patients under treatment for polio-myelitis during its acute state. Her new method consisted of applying moist heat and starting gentle exercise of the affected parts.

She contended this method combated pain, stiffness, deformities and minimized the degree of paralysis. She encountered considerable success and drew widespread recognition outside the medical profession

Physicians usually used splints and other devices to prevent movement of arms, legs and other affected parts

But the Australian nurse contended this only increased the pain and damage of the muscular spasms that resulted from the disease. The term "muscle spasm" denotes a group of symptoms including twitchings, excessive irritability of the muscle to stretching and a more or less continuous state of contraction of the muscle fibers.

Tested Contraction.

Dr. Schwartz and Dr Bouman used a special electric device to test the degree of contraction of the muscles of infantile paralysis victims in comparison to those suffering from spactic paralysis and normal persons.

They found the spasm of the muscle of an infantile paralysis victim can be stronger than the voluntary contraction of the muscle, that it is of a reflex nature and it decreases through treatment as the strength of the voluntary contraction increases

Nurse Kenny's treatment contradicted a point of view established by 150 years of work by the medical profession. Her textbook, "The Treatment of Infantile Paralysis in the Acute Stage," begins with the statement:

"Since the year 1933, I have been endeavoring to present to the medical world the fact that spasm is a damaging and ever present symptom of the disease infantile paralysis . . ."

First accounts in medical histories of the disease were given by Michael Underwood in 1784. Because of its epidemic characteristics it is common to all countries and has become more prevalent in the last 50 years

Erie's first job and yours is to get that boy and his buddies through to their military destination. Sometimes in doing this we can't give you who must travel all the comforts you've grown accustomed to, but we know you know we're doing all we can.

So—when next you ride the Erie,

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

The everyday adventures of two sets of boys and girls are related in two new titles in the children's department of the Mansfield Public Library.

THE MIDDLE MOFFAT, by Eleanor Estes—Jane was neither the oldest, nor the oldest son, nor the youngest. She was just the middle Moffat. The oldest inhabitant of Cranbury, where she lived, believed she was the mysterious middle Moffat. Nancy Stokes was her best friend. There are many amusing adventures to continue the story of Jane's family.

THE KELLYHORNS, by Barbara Cooney — Pamela Kellyhorn lived with her Aunt Ivory in a small town on the sea coast of Maine. Quite by accident she met her twin, Penelope, who lived on Indian Island with their father. When Aunt Ivory learned that Pam had found the others in the family she disappeared. If you read the book you will be sure to find it so interesting that you will certainly be with the Kellyhorns when Aunt Ivory is found.

WEAR BOMBS

Dunces at Flying Schools Decorated With 'Duds.'

MIDLAND ARMY FLYING SCHOOL, Tex. —(U.P.)— You don't tie a string around your finger at this bombardier college; you wear a bomb around your neck—that is, if you are the "Dud" of the Day."

By bombardier custom, the bomb around your neck signifies repentance. A small bomb, lettered "D-U-D" is awarded daily to the cadet adjudged guilty of committing the day's outstanding bombing bungle. The recipient wears it for 24 hours, then publicly passes it along to his successor.

The award carries no stigma. It is merely a phase of "critique," the bombardier practice of open self-criticism aimed at getting those bombs where they belong.

Miss Midnight's Notebook.

Manhattan Glitter: Gail Patrick, the siren, shimmering into the Cub Room . . . Tony DeMarco, the dancer to a maiden's prayer . . . The new "Miss America" gives ringsiders heart failure — she does the rhumba in a strapless evening gown! . . . Glamorous Ann Rutherford putting on tortoise shell specs to read her fan mail at the Cafe Louis XIV . . . Edward G. Robinson strolling the shopping district—looking so much like Mayor LaGuardia in a big black hat . . . Jackie Cooper jiving with the hepcats at Hickory House . . . Greer Garson, in the town's most eye-catching headgear . . . Tamara Toumanova, who looks like a hundred pounds of moonbeams.

This Was the Week In Which: Glenn Miller joined the armed forces and Betty Grable offered to take his band on a tour of the army camps . . . Georgie Jessel drew rave notices in "Show Time" and wistfully confided: "It's so embarrassing — being discovered at my time of life." Rita Hayworth and Hedy Lamarr proved that selling bonds is harder work than making movies by checking in at the hospital for a slight nervous collapse . . . Gene Fowler arrived in town with the first draft of his biography of his friend, the late John Barrymore—and reports say it's a knockout . . . Monte Proser, Broadway's most celebrated torch carrier, entered the army and began carrying a gun instead.

A Stone's Throw From Broadway: Margie Hart turned up at Leon and Eddie's the other night with her once flaming coiffure darkened to match the sable stole around her neck. She confided that she, personally, adored the present ladylike color, but advisors have persuaded her to revert to red for the sake of her Art . . . Stuart Erwin and his beautiful wife, June Collyer, (ever see such dimples?) said "No, thanks" to a ringside table at the Stork Club, and spent the evening perched on a pair of bar stools . . . The luckiest girls in town were those who spotted Ray Milland in the various bistros, and got a close-up of what it is that Ginger Rogers, Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard and the other cinema belles find soooooo attractive . . . Devotees of the rodent family will be glad to hear that Renee DeMarco has introduced her white mouse, name of "Meese," to "Mouse" Bert Wheeler.

The Midnight Scene: Roland Young poring over a menu at El Chico . . . Paul Whiteman, perennial director, hiding behind a chinhigh salad at Sardi's . . . Joan Bennett parking her fascinating black poodle at the Barberry Room's hat checkery . . . Tookie Hunter at the Famous Door wearing her "Priorities" evening gown —the lower half is nothing but shorts! (Do you really think she does that just for the war effort?) . . . Una Merkel feeding the pigeons outside Loew's State's stage door . . . Jack Marshall telling about the blind man who was turned down by his draft board, because his Seeing-Eye dog had flat feet! . . . Dorothy Parker and Mrs. Harry Hopkins in a chatty huddle at the 1-2-3 . . . Terry Lawlor at the Versailles attired in, of all things, white fur pajamas and a white fur coat.

All Around The Town: Backstage at the Belasco, Maxwell Anderson introduced Corp. Marion Hargrove ("See Here, Private Hargrove") and several of the corporal's colleagues, to the actors who will portray them in "The Eve of St. Mark." Anderson modeled the soldiers in his new play on Hargrove and other actual doughboys he met touring the army camps . . . The coy expression on Walter O'Keefe's countenance is due to the fact that a glamor magazine has commissioned him to write a piece called "Any Girl Can Be Beautiful." Seen Broadway Rose lately, Walt? . . . Bernie Lynam and Carol Brown, both of the "Ice Capades" skated to the altar at the Little Church Around the Corner yesterday . . . "Jack," eldest member of the Bricklayers, the wonderful dog act, has a son in the WAGS, the canine corps of the U. S. Army.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—This is Hollywood: Somebody at the studio has discovered that Lynn Bari has a singing voice. But they're afraid to use Lynn Bari's voice when she sings in musicals because in the past they have had another girl double for Lynn Bari's singing. "It wouldn't be the same and people would think it wasn't Lynn singing," is the explanation.

Coons

But so is this: Betty Grable, kept from making army camp tours before by tonsils, wisdom teeth and an operation on different occasions, finally made one—by turning down four weeks of stage appearances in Chicago which would have netted her $30,000.

When actors look hot, tired and exhausted on the screen it often happens that they are hot, tired and exhausted. Bette Davis, Paul Lukas and their movie children—Janis Wilson, Eric Roberts and Donald Buka—were approaching a U. S. immigration bureau station on the Mexican border. In "Watch on the Rhine" they're refugees from Europe, and they're coming home, poverty-stricken, heartsick, hungry for a little security and a kind word.

All five looked the parts—practically without acting. Anybody would look the part under the blanketing heat of a California sun in a low, arid valley. It's no military secret now, but the temperature topped 90 that afternoon —and Bette Davis, to look the matronly mother of three, wore cotton padding.

The players were soon grimy. Carrying heavy luggage and heavy coats under arms, they were soon tired. When the long shots, medium shots and close-ups were finished, late in the day, they all looked even more like refugees—hot, exhausted, and discouraged. They were.

Jimmy Cagney's going to have new neighbors, I hear, next time he visits his place in Martha's Vineyard. Tyrone Power and Annabella are buying a home there. Ty's been to New London, Conn., making "Crash Dive," story of U. S. submarines. They've brought back some super-technicolor stuff —for one shot the cameraman stayed on deck (wearing a helmet) at his camera while the tin fish submerged.

The first horse with a Westmore tail will be on public view in "My Friend Flicka." The colt Flicka chewed most of the tail off one of the full-sized nags and 20th had to get the Westmores to make a blonde (for technicolor) horse's toupe so that the tail would be as beautiful as before and match the earlier scenes.

GAS COMPANY HAS TROUBLE MEETING PEAK

So East Ohio President Says In Testifying on Change In Stock Setup.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— The East Ohio Gas company is having difficulty meeting increased demands of its consumers on peak days, President J. French Robinson reported.

He testified at a securities and exchange commission hearing yesterday that although the war had increased the company's business it would be able to handle peak demand of industrial users if an unlimited supply of gas were available from the Hope Natural Gas company of West Virginia.

The hearing is being conducted on the proposed sale of four gas subsidiaries of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey to the Consolidated Natural Gas company, newly formed Standard subsidiary.

Standard proposes to exchange $83,969,300 capital stock of the four companies for $81,850,70 in Consolidated common stock in an effort to escape the holding company act.

Standard plans to distribute Consolidated common stock to its shareholders if the SEC rules Standard must divest itself of consolidated.

The four subsidiaries are East Ohio, Hope Natural Gas, People's Natural gas company and the River Gas company.

Officials of the utilities are in favor of the plan, they have said, because the subsidiaries disposal by Standard as a unit would not disrupt production, which depends on mutual coordination of effort at the present time.

Explaining the exchange of gas and services between the companies, Edward M. Broger, president of People's, testified that "the, People's and East Ohio have only been able to meet market requirements through continuous consultation of the officers of all three companies and complete coordination year after year."

Robinson said that East Ohio buys gas from Hope and that it is delivered by People's. Last winter East Ohio received between six and seven million cubic feet a day, according to the demand, he said.

"We do not buy gas from any other non-affiliated public utilities system," Robinson added, "and as far as I know we are not contemplating contracts with Columbia Oil & Gas company for a supply from its Panhandle-Toledo pipe line."

SWEPT BY FIRE

Baled Paper, Rags Destroyed In Scrap Yard Blaze.

Starting from undetermined origin, flames late yesterday swept the yard of the Mansfield Iron and Metal company, 194 West Sixth street, destroying storage sheds and quantities of baled paper and rags. The alarm was sent in at 5:10 p. m.

Loss is estimated around $2,000 by Maurice Browarsky, operator of the yard.

The highly inflammable character of the salvaged waste matter aided a rapid spread of the flames, firemen from Nos. 2 and 3 engine houses reported. The crews laid three lines of hose and remained on the scene nearly three hours to guard against further outbreak of the fire and a spread to nearby houses.

Firemen from Central station responded to a false alarm turned in at 1:10 a. m. today from a box at Fourth and Benton streets.

FACE THREAT OF PLANT CLOSING

Cleveland War Plant Operation Handicapped by 'Quickie' Strike of 225 Men.

CLEVELAND—A general shutdown of the Aluminum Company of America's five Cleveland plants was threatened today as 225 "quickie strikers" employed in the smelting branch failed to report for work.

The strikers, members of the Mine, Mill and Smelter workers union (CIO), walked off their jobs yesterday without presenting demands to the company. Company and union representatives were studying bonus rate proposals at the time of the walkout.

The work stoppage—the tenth major ALCOA strike since Pearl Harbor—came when the smelters workers learned they had not been included in bonus increases granted by the WLB to 600 forge plant employes.

The strike was expected to be of short duration, but air force investigators predicted drastic action by the WLB and the war department unless production is resumed promptly.

Cocco, now serving a term in West Virginia state penitentiary, was indicted by the Stark county grand jury for the murder of Robert Effinger, Canton restaurant operator, on May 16, 1941.

BUILD OWN TOMATO CANNERY IN FOOD-FOR-FREEDOM FIGHT

DAYTON — (AP) — If the war could be won with tomatoes alone, 11 victory medals would have to be struck for the Moyers.

The way they have pitched into the "Food for Freedom" fight received special commendation today from the United States department of agriculture. Its office of information gave the following account of how the Moyers, father, mother and nine children, have gone to work.

When the government asked farmers early this year to produce more tomatoes for canning, John Moyer surveyed his farm 10 miles south of Dayton and discovered he could devote 20 acres to the crop. When the plants were in, however, the Moyers discovered there was no cannery within reasonable trucking distance of their place.

Completely undismayed, they determined to do their own canning. The boys laid a cement floor in an old tobacco shed and all the family helped to install plumbing, three cookers and other equipment necessary for canning. When they finished a state inspector said it was one of the best tomato kitchens he had ever seen.

Nineteen-year-old Robert Moyer estimates that if it's a good season the family will be able to turn out 10,000 cases of No. 2 tomatoes, with 24 cans to a case. The government has recognized their enterprize by giving them an order for 4,000 cases.

"We'll run every day, six days a week, until frost," young Moyer said. "And we'll do all the work ourselves."

Even little Martha, five years old, is doing her bit. "I catch the little worms in the tomato fields," she explained gravely. "I'm afraid of the BIG ones."

Autos do not need raincoats. This is the unqualified declaration of Frend C. Boals, traffic commissioner. However, one auto wore a slicker away from the Mansfield-Akron West football game last Friday night and the commissioner is still looking for it. After the game, when his attention was called to untangle a traffic jam, Boals laid his specially-built shower-shroud on the fender of an auto. Returning a few minutes later, the auto plus the coat were gone. Since the garment was one designed especially for motorcycle patrol and now hard to replace because of war priorities, Commissioner Boals is anxious to recover it.

CUTS SUPPLY FOR NATIONAL CONSUMPTION

Food Needed For Army, Navy and Lease-Lend Needs, Secretary Says.

By WILLIAM NEEDHAM

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard announced today that, beginning Oct. 1, civilian meat consumption the last three months of this year would be restricted to approximately 79 per cent of the amount delivered by packers during the last quarter of 1941.

Simultaneously, Wickard reiterated that citizens voluntarily should limit themselves to 2½ pounds of meat a week per person, to permit a fair sharing of available supplies.

As chairman of the War Production Board's food requirements committee, Wickard disclosed that to assure sufficient meat for army, navy and lend-lease needs, the committee had ordered deliveries for civilian use curtailed on this basis:

Beef and veal, 80 per cent of deliveries during the last quarter of 1941; lamb and mutton, 95 per cent; pork, 75 per cent.

The allowance proposed, the secretary declared, was entirely adequate for good nutrition, assuming the 2½ pound limit was observed.

"It is necessary that individuals hold their consumption at this figure whether they eat at home or in public eating places," Wickard said. "Public eating places in some sections may prefer some such device as a meatless day.

"We plan to consult with the trade groups of people managing public eating places and help them work out methods of enabling their patrons to stay within the sharing limits."

Individual households may use any method the family prefers in effecting the limitation, he explained.

He predicted the over-all 21 per cent statistical cut in civilian meat supplies probably would not be as great since adjustments will be made when necessary to allow for changes in distribution patterns and wartime food requirements.

Says 13 States Can Win or Lose War for Country

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The war can be won or lost in the 13 states comprising the ninth naval district, says Commander Felix M. McWhirter, district security officer.

The district includes Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Pointing out that this region produces two-thirds of the material for the armed services, most of the nation's food and 95 per cent of its iron ore, Commander McWhirter told the Ohio State Safety Conference here:

"You are to be commended for the forward and aggressive manner in which you, through your (safety) oragnizations, have prosecuted the highest type of conservation, the conservation of manpower.

"You are helping to discipline a large segment of the people. You realize that this war can be lost, and you should realize that this war can be lost in the ninth naval district. You are helping to win the war, and you will continue to help win the war."

SENT TO JAIL FOR WEEK-ENDS

Mansfielder in War Work Wins Leniency.

Harry W. Honse, 145 West Dickson avenue, must serve two week ends in the county jail following his conviction in municipal court yesterday on the charge of assault and battery, preferred by his wife, Thelma Honse.

Honse was taken into custody by Patrolmen John Steel and Glen Adams on his wife's complaint Tuesday night. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended a fine of $100 and 26 days of a 30-day sentence when it developed Honse was engaged in war work.

Under the reduced penalty Honse must pay costs of the case and serve two Saturdays and two Sundays in jail.

LIMIT SPEED

State or Ohio To Save Large Sums On Car Operation.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — A cent-a-mile in operating costs can be saved by driving an automobile 40 miles an hour instead of at an average speed of 55 miles an hour, State Highway Director Hal G. Sours reported today.

On the basis of a survey conducted by the highway department, Sours estimated that the state would save $66,360 during 1942 by limiting the speed of state cars to 40 miles an hour.

Tyger-Elyria Battle Tops Area Grid Slate This Week

Sport Podge by REX HESS

The women are keeping the kegling sport going in Mansfield this season, even as one and all in the maple knocking fraternity agreed, away last spring, they would have to do, what with all the lads marching away to the armed forces.

But I doubt very much if the gals are ankling up to the foul line to send the mineralite skidding in the general direction of the headpin just for the patriotic notion that they are keeping a sport alive until the boys come home.

They used to try to sell the dolls the idea of keeping a trim figure, and all that sort of thing, through the exercise of bending over and rolling large balls down the shiny lanes.

But there is only one good reason for this particular sport, one reason that brings the gals and the guys and the old folk and the children back for more—that's the satisfaction of hitting the headpin and knocking over as many sticks of kindling as possible, and the hope that next time the score will be better.

Sure, the war has increased women's bowling. But only because the lanes are now open that were formerly taken up by the men.

So what will happen when the boys come back,
Looking so spick and span and fine,
To march right up to the rainerahte rack,
Aching to roll one down the line?
Will it be "Okay, lad, you've got the right?"
Or "Look, little chum, it's ladies' night?"

Your guess is as good as mine, brother.

But it'll be a cinch there'll be more bowlers, men, women and children, in this town than ever before.

And if there's a problem now of filling up the alleys, there'll be a problem then of giving all the bowlers a chance to roll.

That, of course, shouldn't make the bowling alley operators weep. I've never heard one yet complain about having more business than he could handle.

This gives you some idea of what's happening in women's bowling this season up to now!

The Commercial 'A" league starts tonight with 10 teams. The Commercial 'B' league opens tomorrow night with 10 teams. The Tuesday Matinee league starts action next Tuesday with eight teams. A Club league is in process of organization with three teams already in, and others only waiting for club meetings for final decision.

The Westinghouse women's league hits the lid Monday, Oct. 12 with 18 teams. Tappan's will have a women's league and it's still possible the Dominion women's league will operate again. The high school girls undoubtedly will have their kegling league again. And Westbrook women are to have the alleys on Thursday mornings at 11 o'clock.

Just watch the way the ladies do it—

Pioneer Tilt Seen As Toss-Up

Lewis Injured, Other Lineup Changes Likely.

TOPPING the gridmenu for football fans of the Mansfield area this week will be the Mansfield-Elyria battle tomorrow night at Stadium field, a game rated as a toss-up in the advance dope sheet.

Besides shaking up the Tyger lineup to remedy some faults found in the opening 14-6 victory over Akron West last week, Coach Paul Snyder was given further worries last evening when Bill Lewis, big end and kicker of the Tygers, was injured in practice.

Whether he'll be able to play was not known yet today. Sophomore Sam Musille is regarded as first replacement at Lewis' end and may start tomorrow night's game. Snyder hopes at least to be able to use Lewis sparingly in the kicking department.

If Lewis is unable to start, Dick Butterfield is certain to be in the opening lineup, and probably will see action through most of the game as he is the Tygers' next best booter. Snyder reported that Roland Schmidt's side injury, which kept him out of the starting lineup last week, has healed, but indicated he may be kept out for use as a climax runner.

Snyder was also uncertain about the choice for starting fullback. Dominic Musille has been showing well in this spot all week and may get the call, but Snyder said Jerry Zeller and Bill Boyce also will be in there for a good share of the game. "There's really very little difference between the three," the Tyger coach said.

From Elyria comes word that the Pioneers also will be handicapped by injuries tomorrow night, losing Captain George Brunner, left end, who was hurt in the Elyria 8-6 win over Oberlin last Friday.

In practice this week Snyder has been carrying out his announced plan of shifting Bill Snowden to tackle on defense. Otherwise the starting line will be the same as it was last week. Frank Rachel and Rusty McBride will handle the signal-calling chores.

Madison high Rams will be idle this week, but there's a full slate of games in the rest of the area.

Shelby's light team, which dropped a 27-0 decision to a veteran Norwalk aggregation last week, takes on Willard in the home opener at Shelby. Last week Willard held a strong Ashland club to a 12-0 count.

Galion also has its home opener, seeking revenge over a Crestline club for a defeat last season. Crestline last week ran wild over Mt. Gilead 34-0, while Galion was losing to Tiffin Calvert 19-0.

Marion, considered the chief threat to Ashland's championship aspirations in the N. C. O. league, plays its first game of the season, meeting Columbus West loser at Newark last week by a 33-0 score.

Ashland faces another test in playing host to Norwalk, Mt. Vernon, drubbed in the opener by O. S. & S. O. home, meets a traditional rival in Coshocton, while Bucyrus travels to Upper Sandusky.

* * *

Butler and Bellville have home games tomorrow, Butler opening against Utica and Bellville meeting Fredericktown. New London plays at Loudonville.

Big Ten Looks For Grid Answers

CHICAGO — (AP) — The Western conference expects to get the answers to several pertinent football questions this week.

One concerns the strength of the Great Lakes and Iowa Naval Pre-Flight school teams. The other has to do with the championship possibilities of Michigan and Northwestern.

The answers all are wrapped up in the Saturday meetings of Great Lakes and Michigan at Ann Arbor, and the Iowa cadets and Northwestern at Evanston.

Scouts from many conference schools will be watching the two games. The Great Lakes team will meet five Big Ten elevens, the cadets four. Michigan has five future conference foes and Northwestern six.

Among the four teams involved, all that interest may be redoubled and redoubled for Michigan and Northwestern meet later and each also will play the other service squad.

Along with these two encounters the conference will be watching the outcome of the Wisconsin-Notre Dame engagement. Notre Dame also has dates with three other conference members and Wisconsin with five.

The team has not yet found a manager successor to Robert Corry and Robert Nussbaum but it is thought that the season will open Sunday, October 4, with a game here against the Scioto Ordnance team from Marion.

With depleted ranks caused by army inductions the team hopes to be able to continue last year's record of six wins and two losses. The team is under the direction of Arthur Fair, chairman of the sports committee, with Herb Newhouse assisting.

Win 100 Games Losing Pennant

Dodgers Just Can't Get Anywhere, But Fast.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

In 65 years the National league, the oldest baseball organization in the world, has had only one season in which winning 100 games was not sufficient to win the pennant—until this year.

The Brooklyn Dodgers won their 100th game yesterday and it didn't move them even one wisp closer to the championship. That's why the St. Louis Cardinals are making preparations to face the New York Yankees in the world series opening next Wednesday.

The Dodgers reached the 100 victory mark last year on the last day of the season. It was the occasion for a lot of whoop-la because the Dodgers, in all their years in the senior circuit, never had won that many games before. But winning a hundred this year didn't mean a thing.

Brooklyn bagged No. 100 yesterday as old Lefty Larry French marked up one of the finest pitching performances of all times. He pitched a one-hitter, and a single by Nick Etten that got past Shortstop Peewee Reese not only kept the veteran southpaw from a no-hitter but also a perfect game. The Laughing Boy never walked a man, never let anyone get to first base except Etten, who was erased in a double play, and altogether pitched to the minimum of 27 batters.

This remarkable outing brought the Dodgers a 6-0 triumph over the Phils, but it didn't save them from imminent elimination in the pennant fight because the Cardinals also triumphed in a night game against Cincinnati, 4-2.

This made it possible for the Cardinals to clinch the pennant today if they win again from the Reds and the Dodgers lose to Boston.

Even though the Dodgers remained 2½ games behind the lead by winning yesterday, they can do no better than tie if St. Louis wins one of its remaining three games.

The Cardinals came from behind last night to down the Reds, who scored both their runs in the first inning on a walk, an error, a wild pitch and a single. After the first frame Cincinnati made only one hit—a total of two for the game—off Rookie Johnny Beazley as he attained his 20th triumph of the season.

St. Louis smacked Bucky Walters for nine safeties, three of them by Stan Musial, and won handily with three runs in the third and another in the seventh.

While the National league squabble was continuing unabated the New York Yankees, secure with their sixth American league championship in seven years, thumped the Washington Senators, 4-1 on the five-hit hurling of big Ernie Bonham. This closed the Yanks' home season and left them with only one game, at Boston Sunday, to play before they enter the world series next Wednesday.

No other games were scheduled in the major leagues yesterday.

HANEY RESIGNS AS MANAGER AT TOLEDO

TOLEDO — (UP) — Fred Haney manager of the Toledo American association baseball club and the Mud Hens, officially called it quits yesterday ending a relationship which had existed with but one interruption since 1935.

Haney said he had informed officials of the St. Louis American league club which controls the Toledo franchise that he was resigning because of a lack of authority to make player deals.

Lancaster Boy Takes Guard, Dove Keeps End.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. —(UP)— Injuries and withdrawals from school today forced Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame to abandon his plan of converting Bob Dove from an end into a guard.

Leahy decided not to shift the versatile Youngstown boy when Sophomore Jack Zilly, who had been working at the flank suffered a dislocated elbow which will cause him to miss Saturday's contest with Wisconsin.

Zilly is the third player Leahy had counted upon to fill the post Dove held down last season. Matt Bolger, who had been counted upon as a starter, enlisted in the navy and his top replacement, Jack Barry, withdrew from school.

With Dove returning to end, where he won All-American recognition last season, Bob McBride, Lancaster, will move into the regular right guard berth.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—On behalf of West Coast fans, Col. Russ Newland takes issue with this corner's recent nomination of Gunder Haegg as the year's outstanding athlete . . . Russ points out that Cornelius (Dutch) Warmerdam, the pole vault champ, is the only man ever to clear 15 feet officially . . . and he's done it 14 times this year and 26 times in all since April, 1940 . . . We're still inclined to rate Haegg's running at various difficult distances above Connie's consistency at one feat . . . However, we agree that Warmerdam is in line for the standout among American athletes and there's no question about his qualifying as a sportsman, leader, etc. . . . The secretary will cast one affirmative vote.

M'Phail Quits Brooklyn Club

Expects Commission In Field Artillery Sunday.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Larry MacPhail, colorful president of the Brooklyn Dodgers baseball club, is leaving the "stumbling" Bums for duty in a bigger league—Uncle Sam's army.

Rumors that MacPhail was leaving the national league champions to join the army came out in the open last night, and although the Bum's prexy didn't resign formally, he did sever his connection with the team at a special meeting of the Dodgers' directors. The directors accepted and said no successor has been chasen.

Afterward MacPhail disclosed that he expected to be commissioned in the field artillery Sunday, the day the major league season closes, although the fact that his beloved Bums are close to being squeezed out of the national league pennant had no bearing on his action.

MacPhail, who was a captain in the first World war and took part in the effort of a handful of the A. E. F. to kidnap the kaiser after the armistice, has been striving to return to uniform ever since the United States became involved in this war.

It was with tears in his eyes last night that he said his farewell.

"I'm not figuring on coming back to baseball," he said "I've resigned my connection with the Dodgers and from now on it's up to somebody else."

MacPhail was asked if he thought a change was needed in the Dodgers' lineup—whether he would make one if he were staying—and he replied emphatically:

"Yes! You bet your life some changes are needed."

No one could guess on whom the new mantle of Brooklyn leadership might fall. Both Bill Terry and Branch Rickey, farm executives of the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals, respectively, have been mentioned, as have various lieutenants in MacPhail's present organization.

There also was doubt as to whether Manager Leo Durocher would remain as the field leader, regardless of winning or losing the pennant this year. It was understood he has applied for a navy commission.

"Flavor-peaked"—for extra richness! This superb American blend has that expensive, "imported-whiskey" flavor because its foundation whiskies are specially distilled to give them individual qualities—then blended together to a delicate "flavor peak." Today—try the whiskey that's "great—for two big reasons!"

SAYS FREIGHT TO BE FLOWN COME VICTORY

Detroit Industrialist Predicts Air Cargo Vessels After War.

(By United Press)

DETROIT—The transportation miracle of the post-war period will be "freight trains on wings."

This is the forecast of Col. Edward S. Evans, Detroit industrialist, inventor, explorer and pioneer gliding enthusiast whose job for 25 years has been developing quicker and cheaper methods of loading freight cars.

Tremendous strides in hauling freight by air already have been made by the Army Air Forces, but these developments, according to Evans, are only the beginning.

Post-war America, he said, will see thousands of freight-plane trains carrying "millions of pounds of freight" not only to every point in the United States where airport facilities have been arranged, but also to strategic centers throughout the world.

Cites Burma Road.

"We are going to be able to transport this freight," he explained, "in one-tenth the time of the average train haul and in one per cent of the time of the average ship haul. Furthermore, costs will be lower than railroad or truck rates."

When the war is over and aircraft manufacturers resume production of commercial planes, cargo transports and motorless gliders, Evans believes freight will take to the air, leaving railroads to haul only coal, ore, sand and gravel and probably grain. A transport plane serving as a "tractor," he said, could haul freight across the country in eight hours at a cost of 4 cents a ton mile.

One plane, because of its speed, can deliver as much freight per day as 100 trucks, Evans said. He cited the Burma road as an example. There were approximately 4,500 trucks in use on the Burma road before the Japanese cut it off, he said, and they delivered 30,000 tons of freight per month. About two-thirds of the freight, he added, was fuel for the return trips, leaving only about 10,000 useful tons of delivered materials.

Evans said it would require a fleet of only 35 cargo planes to equal the delivered cargoes of 4,500 trucks because the Burma road is only 360 miles long by air against 726 miles on land from Lashio to Chungking.

The most important factor in air transport, according to the Detroit industrialist, is the use of the glider.

"A glider as large as an air transport would have one-third the head resistance and would carry a much heavier payload," he said. "While the air transport would have to carry gasoline, engines and other equipment, a glider only would need one or two men, and virtually no equipment."

Thus, he explained, where an air transport could carry 40,000 pounds of payload, an air transport glider could haul more than 50,000 pounds. By hitching three gliders behind a transport, he said, "we can carry 190,000 pounds of freight with the same horsepower and a reduction in speed of only approximately 40 per cent."

"If the transport plane which acts as a tractor would have a speed of 300 miles an hour, the train could make a speed of about 180 miles an hour," he said.

As far back as 1929, Evans predicted "great air liners, perhaps with a speed of 90 miles an hour, carrying 50 to 100 tons, which will be used for transporting our freight."

PROVES HONESTY

Soldier Returns $65 He Found In Taxicab.

CAMP BLANDING, Fla.—(INS)—Soldiers generally are honest. When Pvt. Irving Buxbaum, of New York City, climbed into a cab at nearby Starke a payday week-end recently, he found a roll of $65 in the front seat.

Suspecting the loser was probably a doughboy, Buxbaum left word with the taxi company where he could be found. About an hour later a breathless private rushed up to Buxbaum and proved himself the owner of the roll.

Basket making is believed to be one of the earliest human industries.

DON'T BE FOOLED BY A FULL JUNK YARD!

Don't listen to people who say--"They can't need scrap very badly. Look at that junk yard, or the auto graveyards -- they've got plenty of scrap. And remember the last time we had a drive the stuff sat around for weeks." Tell such people these true facts:

OF course the junk yards are full. They are "factories" that turn out finished scrap—sorted, broken up, and bundled . . . ready for the mills of America. The scrap has to go through these yards, and it keeps going through fast!

The auto graveyards too, are busy. They specialize in used car parts, but produce plenty of scrap as well. In June alone, these yards moved 450,000 tons — for they are required to junk within 60 days as many cars as they buy.

As for Salvage Depots — communities all over the country are staging drives. All this scrap can't be taken away at once. The junkies can't handle it and the mills can't store it. But every pound is needed and will be used. We've got to pile it up ready for instant use at any time.

The day when all junk yards are empty, when the auto graveyards are cleaned out, when all the local scrap stockpiles are gone —that is the day to dread. It is a day to avoid at all costs.

So remember—steel is needed to fight the war, and millions of lives depend on it. This steel is made of 50% scrap — and the mills have not enough scrap to last even 30 days longer. Don't fail to do your part in this emergency.

MARKET RALLY EXTENDED BY LIST LEADERS

Low-Priced Industrials and Rails Continue Trade In Sizeable Blocks.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The late stock market rally of the preceding session was extended by fractions in today's proceedings.

While low priced rails and industrials continued to trade in sizable blocks, pivotals generally edged forward on good volume.

Gainers included Bethlehem, Johns-Manville, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich and Consolidated Aircraft.

Followers of building material shares studied the survey of the engineering news-record indicating heavy construction contracts for the current week were down 28 per cent from the week before and 10 per cent under the corresponding period last year. For the year to date, however, the figure was 58 per cent larger than for the 39-week stretch of 1941.

Helpful was the Dun & Bradstreet compilation disclosing bank clearings in 23 cities during the week ended Wednesday mounted to the highest level for 1942 thus far and were 28.2 per cent greater than in the comparable week a year ago.

OFFER REJECTED BY FARM GROUP

Walk Out of Meeting Called For Settlement of Price Parity Regulations.

were reported to be preparing a new compromise amendment which they would offer on the floor today in an attempt to wean enough votes away from the farm bloc to defeat the Thomas amendment.

This compromise amendment was understood to be a provision directing the president to raise farm price ceilngs to compensate for increased labor costs. The language of the senate bill now authorizes, but does not direct, the chief executive to revise farm price ceilings upward to account for raising farm labor costs if it is clearly shown that "gross inequities" would otherwise result.

But an overwhelming vote late yesterday by a rebellious house to raise present parity levels of agricultural products 12 per cent appeared to have smashed whatever hope the administration had of keeping a similar provision out of the senate bill.

Price administration officals have estmated that such an increase in parity levels would increase the cost of living about five per cent.

Senate Administration Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky still thought there was a "fair chance that we can work something out" and scheduled a conference with the farm leaders for today.

Congress has only one week to act on anti-inflation legislation.

President Roosevelt's deadline to congress — "you-do-it-or-I-will"— is Oct. 1, a week from today.

The bill more than likely will be on his desk by that date. But present prospects are that it will be such an emasculated version of the price, wage and salary control authority that he requested that he will veto it. Mr. Roosevelt has expressed his unalterable opposition to changing the farm parity formula.

Sen. Prentiss M. Brown, (D., Mich.) manager of the senate bill, charged that pressure groups had persuaded "a very large number of senators" to vote for the farm bloc's version and deplored the fact that consumers and "the great majority of farmers" were not organized to bring similar pressure against it.

He apparently referred to the four major farm organizations, 250 representatives of which farm bloc leaders have admitted were "working on senators."

The 11th hour efforts of administration senate leaders to keep the farm bloc amendment out of the bill blew up late yesterday when the house, by a 205 to 172 vote, inserted into the anti-inflation bill an administration-opposed amendment requiring that for control purposes parity prices must include the farmer's labor costs—not only those of his hired hands but the time put in by himself and his family.

The effect of that amendment would be to raise present parity levels—below which the president may not go in curbing farm price increases—by 12 per cent in a bill originally designed to reduce the present minimum standard of 110 per cent to 100 per cent.

After ignoring the president's appeal for no change in parity levels, the house passed the bill, 284 to 96, and sent it to the senate where a companion measure has been under debate since Monday.

A house move to send the bill back to committee to provide a temporary price-wage stabilization measure and give congress 90 days to frame another program was rejected, 222 to 65.

Prediction of a presidential veto for any anti-inflation bill with the farm labor cost amendment in it came from both senate and house leaders. House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts warned that Mr. Roosevelt would be compelled to rule over prices, wages and salaries by executive order.

If the president vetoes the bill and proceeds by executive action to stabilize wages, salaries and prices, the farm bloc's victory will be only a temporary one. Administration leaders charged that the farm bloc was election conscious—that it was making out a strong case with the farmers even though Mr. Roosevelt nullifies their efforts with a veto.

As passed by the house, the bill empowers the president to stabilize prices, wages and salaries—but not other cost-of-living factors—at Aug. 15 levels. However, the farm labor amendment would nullify many of the president's powers because it opens the way for many farm prices to rise beyond the limits of the present price control law.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

many long stretches of which will afford two-way traffic.

The highway begins at Dawson Creek, B. C., north of Edmonton, and extends northwest to Whitehorse, Yukon, and then westward across the Alaskan boundary to Fairbanks.

Known as the "Alcan highway," it will connect with the railway and highway systems of the United States at Dawson Creek, and provide direct motor connections with Alaska. It also will serve to carry supplies to several important military airfields which heretofore have had to depend on the air for supplies.

Construction of the road as a military project, by agreement between the United States and Canada, was carried out by U. S. Army engineers under the direction of Maj. Gen. Eugene Reybold, chief of engineers.

The new northwest service command, announced Sept. 10 to take charge of army highway and railway building activities in western Canada and Alaska, with headquarters at Whitehorse, will administer highway affairs.
